ISSUES LOST IN PARTY WAR IN WISCONSIN

Strife Between Three Factions of Republicans Still Prevails

BEER VOTE IMPORTANT Lost Sight of Taxation and Conservation in Fac- tional Struggle

Milwaukee—(AP)—A factional struggle within the ranks of the Republican party which enjoys an overwhelming majority in the state, shares with a referendum on 2.75 beer the center of interest in the general election in Wisconsin next Tuesday.

Strife between three factions of the Republicans, fought to a decision in the primary election with the result of victory of Governor John J. Blaine as the nominee for the United States senate seat of Irvine L. Lenroot, and the victory of Fred R. Zimmerman, anti-Blaine Progressive gubernatorial candidate, still prevails.

BLAINE STILL FIGHTING
Blaine has been engaged in a fight with the nominees of other parties but this contest has been submerged by the hammering assaults of J. N. Titterton, Conservative, and Charles D. Ross, Progressive Independent, candidates who have loomed as the greatest menace to the governor's aspirations to join Senator Robert M. La Follette, Jr.

State questions of taxation and conservation have been lost in a maze of controversy over political alignments and the question of membership in the Ku Klux Klan in the gubernatorial race. Fred R. Zimmerman, secretary of state, successful Republican nominee, was charged with membership in the hooded order by Charles D. Perry, Republican Independent, candidate for attorney general. The referendum by which the attitude of the voters towards modification will be known, has aroused widespread interest despite the fact that the outcome will leave unchanged the prohibition situation in Wisconsin. The voters merely will indicate whether they favor modification of the Volstead act to permit the sale of beer containing 2.75 per cent of alcohol.

MAY ISSUE EVJUE WARRANT
Madison—(AP)—After hearing preliminary evidence in the political controversy between Harry W. Adams of Beloit, campaign manager for Charles D. Ross, independent senatorial candidate and William T. Evjue, Madison editor, Judge O. A. Stolen Saturday postponed decision on the issuance of a warrant for the editor's arrest. Adams, charging a violation of the contempt practices act by Mr. Evjue, editor of the Capital Times, in an editorial, made his application for the warrants in company with Phillip La Follette, district attorney. In his complaint, the campaign manager alleged that Mr. Evjue, by stating that he (Adams) "had been trying to get on the state payroll for six years," was seeking to bring about the defeat of his candidate by the publication of "false statements."

Mr. Evjue urged officials to issue the warrant for his arrest and notified Mr. Adams' action. Judge Stolen will make his decision Monday morning, it was announced.

FIND BODY OF MISSING LIGHTHOUSE SHIP MATE

Houghton, Mich.—(AP)—The body of John Schneider of Detroit, first mate of the lighthouse tender Amaranth, missing since Oct. 7, was found Friday in Lake Superior, fifty miles west of here.

Schneider left the Amaranth for a duck hunting expedition on the island. It is believed he injured himself while hunting and died of exposure. Schneider's body was found by members of the Amaranth and is being brought here.

EXTRA!!!

When you hear the boys call "Extra" to-night you will know they are selling The Post-Crescent's "Pink Sheet" which contains scores of all the principal football games of the country. The "pink" will carry complete accounts of the Lawrence-Lake Forest, Wisconsin-Michigan and Green Bay-Appleton games and brief stories of the other important games.

Watch for the extra at 6 o'clock tonight.

IF WOMEN APE MEN THEY MAY BECOME APE-WOMEN SOON

Berlin—(AP)—The masculinization of women, by means of bobbed hair, mannish dress and participation in business and athletic pursuits soon may reach proportions of a menace to modern civilization, says Prof. Hugo Sellheim, sexologist of the University Halle.

In an address which caused a sensation at the International Congress of Sexology, he described in detail one case of a woman who at the age of 43 was metamorphosed into being with all the appearances of a man.

"She showed a growth of beard," Professor Sellheim said. Her voice changed from a clear soprano to deep bass. The lines of her face and the development of muscle became those of a man. Even her Adam's apple took on a pointed prominence. Children of the neighborhood hounded her with cat calls of "witch." "I have no doubt that she would have been burned at the stake had she lived a few centuries before her time."

The same masculine development is fundamentally possible in all women, he said.

CONVICT RICH CATTLEMAN IN OSAGE DEATHS

William K. Hale Found Guilty in Federal Court; Gets Life Term

Oklahoma City, Okla.—(AP)—Four years of investigation of the Oklahoma Osage country "reign of terror," in which nearly a score of persons met mysterious deaths, has resulted in the conviction in federal court here of William K. Hale, wealthy cattleman, as the alleged leader of the gang.

Known as "King of the Osage hills," because of his extensive ranch holdings, Hale was arrested by state agents nearly a year ago with John Ramsey, cowboy rancher, on a charge of dynamiting the home of W. B. Smith, who with his Indian wife and a white servant girl, was killed in the explosion. The state charged Hale plotted to kill the family to obtain control of a large fortune, secured by Smith's Osage wife on old royalties.

OTHER BODIES FOUND
With the finding of more bodies in isolated places the government entered the case and when Henry Roan, Osage tribesman, was found shot to death in a pasture, Hale and Ramsey were charged with the murder. The government claimed jurisdiction and the men were convicted in federal court here Friday. Both were sentenced to life imprisonment.

BEGIN HEARING OF NOTED ARCHITECT

Wright and Dancer Must Face Trial on Federal Charges in Court

Minneapolis—(AP)—Frank Lloyd Wright, the architect, was bound over to the federal grand jury on a Mann act charge at a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner H. S. Gurnea.

The preliminary hearing for Mme. Olga Milano, companion of Wright, on a Mann act charge, was postponed one week when attorneys for the dancer told Commissioner Abbott that she was neither mentally nor physically fit to appear Saturday.

HALL'S BODY REMOVED FROM FAMILY VAULT

New York—(AP)—The body of the Rev. Edwards Hall was removed from its vault in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn, to a Brooklyn undertaker's parlors early Saturday for a new autopsy by Dr. Otto H. Schultz, medical expert of this city.

The body which had been in the burial vault of the family of Mrs. Hall was removed at 7 o'clock Saturday morning and Dr. Schultz was to perform the autopsy today. He already has performed a new autopsy on the body of Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, choir singer who was slain with the Rev. Hall in New Jersey four years ago.

LAWRENCE IN FORECAST OF VOTE RESULT

Congress Will Remain Republican-With Comparatively Little Change

(This is the first of a series of three dispatches forecasting the outcome of the congressional elections of next Tuesday. They are written by David Lawrence after a tour of the principal states in which active campaign contests have developed and after an analysis of confidential reports received by telegraph from all states in the last twenty-four hours.)

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright, 1926 by the Post Pub. Co.)
Washington—Congress will remain Republican. Relatively little change takes place in either the senate or the house. For this is not a national election but a series of local contests in which candidates for congress are either the beneficiaries or the victims of local warfare and the conflict of personalities.

The senate will lose a few regular Republicans while there is some chance that the Republicans will increase their majority in the house. In both cases the majority is really too small for political comfort. As for the senate, a coalition of insurgent Republicans and Democrats will again be able to thwart the wishes of President Coolidge. The opportunities for the regular Republicans in the senate to change that situation were not provided this year.

SOUTH HAS SIX STATES
One of the 32 states in which senatorial elections take place—this being one third of 96 as this proportion comes up every two years for election—the Democrats have six states in the "solid south" where primaries have been held that are the equivalent of election for the Democratic nominees.

AGREE ON MERGER OF BIG RAILROADS

Vansweringen consolidation
Will Be Submitted for Commission's O. K.

New York—(AP)—The Vansweringen brothers of Cleveland, are reported to have met opposition to their proposed Erie and Delaware and Hudson railroad merger by dropping the Erie from their plans. The two former newspapers who are planning a trunk line to complete with the Pennsylvania, New York Central, and Baltimore and Ohio, now plan to serve Newport News only as a port and leave New York out of their calculations, the New York Times says Saturday.

Opposition by minority stockholders of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad to their original plan, which was a primary cause of its rejection by the Interstate Commerce commission, has been overcome, the paper declares, and the proposed merger probably will go before the commission unopposed in its present form.

HOUDINI'S CONDITION IS REPORTED AS GRAVE

Detroit—(AP)—The condition of Harry Houdini, reported as grave early Saturday by officials at the hospital where he underwent a second operation Friday night. New complications in the form of paralysis of the bowels have developed and physicians said there is little hope of recovery. The second operation was decided on Friday night in an attempt to check the paralysis but a statement issued later indicated the surgical attempt was unsuccessful.

WIRE TICKS

Mandan, N. D.—(AP)—The Sioux are to give Marie a feather blanket. They think a peace pipe might be offensive. Perhaps they had not heard that "Nickey" as she calls her son, and Mamea gave mother cigarette lighters for her birthday.

Camden, N. J.—Elinor Dorrance, heiress, in tears has gone into seclusion because the papers learned she was working in father's factory and some said she was peeling tomatoes. Dad is distressed notwithstanding good publicity for the tomatoes. He wishes no publicity for his daughter's efforts to be something besides an idle society girl and has been in his office and the tomatoes are peeled by machinery anyhow.

New York—A couple of fellow townsmen from Wheaton, Ill., are pals. Elbert H. Cary entertained Red Grange at lunch in his office and promised to see Red in action Sunday with some Annie Oakleys.

Produce Blood-Stained Razor in Mills Murder

Instrument Was Used to Cut
Singer's Throat, Authorities
Believe

Somerville, N. J.—(AP)—A stained and finger marked razor, said to have been used to cut the throat of Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, Saturday was included among exhibition to be offered in evidence against his alleged slayers when they go to trial next Wednesday.

The razor was turned over to Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson Friday by Frank Caprio, a detective who worked on the original Hall Mills murder investigation four years ago. He said it was given him by the late Azariah Beckman, prosecutor of Somerset when the murders were committed, with the remark that did the slaying. The reasons for delaying for producing the razor were not fully explained.

An expert engaged by Simpson thought there might be blood stains on the razor and was certain it had fingerprints. The razor was produced shortly after the body of Mrs. Mills had been returned to its unmarked grave in New Brunswick after its second exhumation, and after

PICK DANCERS FOR PARTS IN ANNUAL SCHOOL OPERETTA

Elaborate Preparations Are Made for "Bells of Barcelona"

Solo and specialty dancers for the operetta "The Bells of Barcelona" to be given Dec. 6 at Fischer's Appleton theatre, by a cast of Appleton high school students were selected this week and held their first rehearsal on Friday at Moose hall. The twelve girls chosen will lead the dancing choruses as well as give solo dances.

The group selected includes Sybelle Plank, M. Bogan, Bernice Parker, Ellen Dutcher, Dorothy Schubert, Marie Schmidt, Trudy Weber, Helen Schneider, Lucille Kranhold, Leona Captain, Florence Nelson and Ruth Gillett. Dances and dramatic work will be coached by Miss Ruth McKennan and the musical choruses and instrumental work by Carl McKee.

A special chorus of marines will be led by Carleton Stark. Boys in the chorus were selected from outside the school which will contribute the best singing choruses. A 20 piece orchestra will accompany during the operetta.

Special evening rehearsals will be started soon for the cast, dancing choruses and orchestra. Mr. McKee said. Up to this time, all rehearsals have been held during the school periods when orchestra and orchestra are scheduled to meet. Most of the costumes for the play this year will be rented from professional costumers, rather than be made by the students, the director announced. They will be selected by Miss McKennan.

NEW OFFICERS OF LEGION TAKE HOLD

Newly Elected Executive Committee Begins Work on Year's Program

Officers of Oney Johnston post of the American Legion are preparing for the largest attendance at a post meeting this year at the session Monday evening at Elk hall. Every Legionaire of Appleton, whether a member of the post has been invited. Plans for the meeting were made at a meeting of the post executive committee Friday evening at the Conway hotel.

At the Friday evening meeting the new executive committee changed places with the old group and immediately started work on the program for the year. Committee appointments for the year were made and these will be announced Monday evening. Past state commanders of the Legion will inspect the armies of the membership campaign in the form of a regular military inspection. Plans for an elaborate program for Armistice day will be taken up.

FUNERAL OF RAILROAD MAN TO BE HELD SUNDAY

Hudson—(AP)—Funeral services for Frank L. Bacon, former general agent of the freight department of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railroad with headquarters in St. Paul, who died here Friday will be held Sunday. He was 67 years old. Mr. Bacon withdrew from activity a year ago after seven years as general agent. The body will be taken to Superior for burial.

ARREST "DRY" RAIDER FOR PULLING GUN

Federal Prohibition Officer
Taken into Custody Following Raid Here

What promises to be the opening move of Outagamie-co law enforcement agencies in investigating tactics alleged to have been used by federal prohibition enforcement officers in conducting raids in Appleton and Outagamie-co took place Friday night shortly after 7 o'clock when Sheriff Peter G. Schwartz served a warrant on a man giving his name as James H. Graham, Cleveland, O., at the Conway hotel.

Vociferously protesting that as a federal prohibition agent he could not be arrested on a charge of assault while armed with a weapon, the federal man nevertheless found himself in the custody of the sheriff and the clerk of municipal court was later called to accept nominal bond for Graham's appearance in municipal court here Monday morning.

CHICAGOAN IS INDICTED AS "BOOZE KING"

Story of Rapid Rise to Wealth
Is Woven About Arrest of Parker

Chicago—(AP)—The story of a man who five years ago walked out of the Illinois penitentiary virtually penniless, now known as a wealthy sportsman through bootlegging operations in which a fleet of aeroplanes played a major role, was woven Saturday about the indictment of Frank G. Parker.

Control of a string of brewers' illicit liquor distribution by air and extensive activities in Canada were high spots in career outlined by federal agents, who said the indictments will halt the amassing of fortune which already approximates $5,000,000.

SPECIAL AGENT "PAT" ROCHO said the charging of Parker and eight others "with violating the prohibition law" was the result of four years of trying work by the government against one of the biggest and "smoothest" bootleg chieftains in the country. Specifically, the indictments charged implication in the operation of a brewery raided last June.

BECAME KNOWN IN 1923
Part of Parker's story into the front pages in 1923 by flying to a band of loggers marooned on an island in Lake Michigan by a blizzard, with food supplies, and two years ago he was a guarantor of the Carpenter-Gibbons fight at Michigan City, Ind.

Part of Parker was sent to Joliet as a chief of an automobile theft ring with headquarters in Minneapolis and at the end of two years was paroled. His case being mentioned in connection with the prison inquiry last summer. Without funds, federal men said, he came to Chicago and began his successful operations.

BREWERY AT FORT ATKINSON
The suicide of a member of the Canadian parliament in connection with a scheme charged to Parker was one incident related by the agents and the operation of a large brewery at Fort Atkinson was another.

The surprise indictment of Parker came while detectives made their latest sortie into Cicero in connection with the murder of Santo Colebbon, shot down Friday in the suburban seat of bootleg warfare, recently supposed to have become quiet under a gangster peace pact. Colebbon was identified with the "alky racket" when a deputy marshal sent to serve a federal bench warrant on bootlegging charges found his man in the morgue.

QUEEN MARIE ON WAY BACK TO UNITED STATES

Queen Marie—Train Enroute Winnipeg—(AP)—The United States again will take up the role of host to Queen Marie and other members of the Roumanian royal party on Sunday, to keep it throughout the remainder of the continental tour except for a few hours which will be spent in Vancouver Nov. 5.

Winnipeg, the party's destination since it left Ottawa Thursday night, will be reached Saturday night and St. Paul, the next American stop, will be reached Sunday afternoon. Queen Marie expects to attend services at a Roumanian church in St. Paul.

Flaming Arrows Drive Negro Slayer From Barn

Crow Agency, Mont.—(AP)—Flaming arrows fired from the bows of Crow Indians from the cover of farm wagons, brought an end to a siege near here Friday after a Negro fugitive had barricaded himself in his barn home and killed two officers and wounded another before flames drove him into the open, where he was ridled with bullets.

Ordered by Sheriff Robert Gilmore of Big Horn-co to leave the agency because suspicion attached itself to him in connection with recent robberies, Jim Bolden a 40-year-old Negro cobbler barricaded himself in a barn

THEY TOOK HIS TIPS; HE TOOK THEIR JACK; NOW COPS WANT HIM

Eau Claire—(AP)—Jules Hazelle, self-styled psycho-analyst has disappeared, but his ghost remains, it was revealed here Friday night when police reported that he is sought on allegations that he has fleeced persons of several thousands of dollars.

Occult stock market "tips" given persons here resulted in investments with Hazelle acting as agent. Faith in the powers later was disturbed, however, when it was discovered that he had left and that the money had been taken with him.

Police did not reveal the names of the investors but said that one, a woman, gave him a note for $1,400 while three men gave him $5,000 each.

Returns of 300 per cent were promised, according to the tales of the complainants to the police.

9 MINERS DIE IN EAST WHEN GAS EXPLODES

Six Anthracite Workers Have Narrow Escape in Pennsylvania Blast

Wilkesbarre, Pa.—(AP)—Nine anthracite mine workers were killed in an explosion of gas Saturday at the No. 7 colliery of the Susquehanna Coaleries company at Nanticoke and six others had a narrow escape from a similar fate. Among the dead were three brothers Joseph, Andrew and Louis Novak.

A rescue squad immediately entered the mine but could not penetrate far because of the presence of black damp. Two bodies were removed from the underground working a short time after the accident.

TRACTION COMPANY BUYS HOMAN BUSESSE

Single Company Will Operate on Schedule Maintained by Two Lines

A deal which has been simmering for some time came to fruition late Friday afternoon when the Wis. T. L. H. and P. Co., acquired by Purchase the holdings of the Twin City Bus Co., operating between Neenah and Appleton, it was announced by A. K. Ellis, vice president and general manager of the traction concern, Saturday.

Seven buses and other physical holdings as well as the good will of the former company were involved in the transaction, it was stated.

A. C. Homan, Neenah, former owner of the bus line, will be connected with the company for a time, Mr. Ellis said.

Schedules will be those maintained formerly by the competing lines, it was stated. The consideration was not announced.

JURY STILL DEBATING IN KLAN RIOTING CASE

Marinette—(AP)—After a night's rest, the circuit court jury, deciding the innocence or guilt of the nine defendants in the Ku Klux Klan riot case, resumed deliberations at 8 o'clock Saturday morning.

The nine men, charged with inciting a riot, are alleged by the state to have participated in the outbreak June 25 when a mob of 1,000 persons broke up a Klan meeting and destroyed the tent in which the meeting was being held. Judge W. B. Quinn gave the case to the jury late Friday and ordered the men to remain in the jail when six hour deliberation failed to bring a verdict.

SENTENCE MINNESOTA MAN TO LEAVENWORTH

Minneapolis—(AP)—Joseph Barnes, 68, who directed the Interstate Securities company which sold fraudulent real estate mortgages to scores of Wisconsin residents, Saturday sentenced to four years in Leavenworth federal penitentiary. Eugene Barnes, 41, son of Joseph Barnes, and Richard Thompson, his son-in-law, were fined $1,500 and $2,000 respectively. All three men pleaded guilty to charges of using the mails to defraud W. A. Cant. The elder Barnes was granted a 30 day stay of sentence. The defendants all of whom live in Minneapolis, conducted the Interstate Securities company. Their business extended over Wisconsin, Minnesota and North and South Dakota.

PRESIDENT IS SILENT Cal Refuses to Take Posi- tion of Choice of Illinois Senator

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—The great American drama "politics of 1926," hurried Saturday toward its climax, with actors throughout the country, concentrating their last minute efforts upon snaring the elusive vote in the last act—Tuesday's election which will decide the complexion of the seventy-eighth congress.

Sharing interest with a formal White House statement denying that President Coolidge had expressed an attitude on the choice of a United States senator in Illinois, was a defense by Frank L. Smith, Republican senatorial nominee, in that state, against attacks on contributions to his campaign fund by Samuel Insull, utility magnate while in office, as chairman of the Illinois Commerce commission, exercised supervision over rates and service of the Insull companies.

"In a presidential year," Smith declared, "the great protected interests contribute to the campaign fund of the candidates who will give them or continue a protective tariff. Who finds anything sinister in that?" "Forgetting the president as a person, or whether he is Republican or Democratic, he has under our present laws the right to personally to raise or lower the tariff to protect the country's charges that because the protected industries contribute to the fund to elect him he was put under obligations to grant special favors to these contributors?"

COOLIDGE FAILS TO COMMENT
The formal White House statement was issued without comment after the president had been informed that Friday the Chicago Tribune had represented him as making certain comments on the Illinois political situation.

The president, it said "has given no interviews, made no statement, taken no position, and expressed no attitude for the purpose of influencing the choice of a United States senator in Illinois."

BECKER DIES AT HOME AT MONROE

Former Judge Was Convicted
Under Espionage Act During War

Monroe—(AP)—John M. Becker, former county judge, who as a follower of Senator Robert M. La Follette vigorously opposed the entrance of the United States into the world war, died here Friday where he lived during the stormy years of his life. Becker was county judge of Green-co for 23 years. "I was on the bench when his utterances against the war brought his trial on a charge of violation of the espionage act. He was convicted and sentenced to three years in Leavenworth federal prison but the circuit court of appeals over-ruled the sentence."

INDUSTRY SCHOOL RATES AMONG BEST

Heads of Local Institution
Complete Visit of Schools in Neighboring Cities

Appleton's Vocational school compares favorably with those in Sheboygan, Manitowish, Two Rivers and Green Bay, in the opinion of Herb Hellig, director of the local school, and James Chadek, head of the cabinet making and carpentering departments, who visited the schools in those cities Thursday. The lack of room was the prevailing evil found in every school visited, according to Mr. Chadek. The two local mentors left Appleton early Thursday morning and arrived at Green Bay before the beginning of the morning session. The Green Bay school is larger than the local school, according to Mr. Chadek, and the tardy percentage is higher. A study of the methods used in various departments of each of the schools was made by the teachers, with the purpose of gaining new ideas to be used in the local school. Mr. Hellig and Mr. Chadek praised the school at Manitowish because of the neatness of its machine shop, carpentering and other trade class rooms which are all in one building and in one large room. The floors in this department are highly varnished and are kept spotlessly clean at all times. The tools and equipment are kept in a neat and orderly fashion in spaces provided. This department is one of the finest of the state, according to Mr.

EQUALIZATION BOARD WILL MEET NOV. 10

A meeting of the county committee on equalization has been called for Nov. 10, by Frank Schroeder, chairman of the body, town of Center, it was reported on Friday. At this time the report of Income Assessor Leo J. Toonen will be reviewed by the committee, it was stated. Chadek, who declared that he obtained many ideas of merit for use in his department here.

FOREIGN MAIL AT POSTOFFICE IS NOT LARGE

The Appleton post office probably handles the smallest percentage of foreign mail of any city of this size in the state, according to local officials. Only a small percentage of the mail received here comes from foreign countries and an equally small amount is sent from this city to those countries. The reason for this is that there is practically no foreign element here, it is explained. Another result of the small foreign element is that the local savings in Appleton are much smaller than in cities of similar size. The postal savings system was established in European countries before its adoption in America. Most of the peasants regard this postal savings department as a bank and when they emigrate to the United States one of the first things they look for is a post office and a postal savings department. Therefore in those cities where the foreign element is very small the postal savings are less than in cities where the foreign population is large.

BOTH PARTIES HAVE HIGH HOPES AT END OF ELECTION RACES

Prohibition, World Court and Tariff Biggest Questions
Considered

Washington—High hopes and conflicting claims attend the close Saturday of the biennial campaign of Republicans and Democrats for control of congress and the machinery of government in many states.

The issues have been drawn over weeks of campaigning and on Tuesday the voters will decide whether in the closing two years of his present administration President Coolidge is to have a senate and house dominated by his party or a militant Democracy in control in one or both.

Admittedly the outcome of this election may have a far-reaching effect on the presidential contest in 1928, for out of this campaign may come the figure who eventually will be selected to carry the banner of Democracy at that time. Several candidates in important contests already have been widely discussed in this connection.

MOST PROMINENT CONTESTS
These include former Senator Allen Pomeroy of Ohio, who again is seeking a senate seat, and Governors Ritchie of Maryland, Smith of New York, is making his fifth campaign for governor of his state, and should he win again undoubtedly would become a central figure once more in the Democratic presidential group. William G. McAdoo, whose deadlock with Smith two years ago is celebrated, now seeks no elective office, but did step in to retain the control of the Democratic machinery in California.

So far as the senatorial and congressional contests have been concerned, the campaign now closing has lacked a clear-cut issue with most leaders of both parties maintaining rigid silence on two questions which have been paramount in many races—prohibition and the world court.

Concededly, these two subjects were loaded with political dynamite so far as the duly constituted campaign organization from one end of the country to the other seized upon them with avidity.

PROHIBITION BIG ISSUE
Prohibition was the chief issue, particularly in the senatorial contests, in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Missouri and other states, while prohibition referendums were ordered in New York, Missouri, Wisconsin, Colorado, Montana, Illinois, Nevada, and California.

Coolidge and prosperity formed the rallying cry of the Republican political organizations, with the campaign committees firing occasional broadsides at the opposition on what was characterized as Democratic extravagance during and immediately after the war.

While President Coolidge himself took no active part in the campaign, every member of his Cabinet went into the field in the fight the Republicans have made to retain their working majorities in both the house and senate.

Big guns of the Democratic party also were unlimbered to support the work of their campaign committees, which furnished an almost daily grist of statements characterizing Coolidge prosperity as a myth and Republican economy as a day dream.

With loud voice the Democrats demanded tax reduction at this session of congress, charging openly that it was the deliberate purpose of the president and the leaders of his party to defer tax reduction for political effect in the 1928 presidential campaign despite a large surplus now in the treasury.

DEMAND TAX REDUCTION
Tax reduction downward was another demand and this at one time led to a personal verbal tilt between Chairman Butler of the Republican National committee, who is seeking reelection to the senate from Massachusetts, and Chairman Oldfield of the Democratic Congressional Campaign committee.

Stress also was laid by the Democrats on the failure of the Republican congress to enact farm relief legislation, while the Coolidge administration became a target on the ground that it had fostered monopolies.

Revelations before the senate campaign funds committee of huge expenditures on Republican primaries this year in Pennsylvania and Illinois also were seized upon by the Democrats. They denounced what was denominated as "Vareism" and accused the opposition party with countenancing the debauchery of the electorate.

MRS. BASSETT ALWAYS TIRED

Now in Good Health by Using
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lansing, Mich.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound whenever I needed it. When I first used it I was so bad I could hardly walk across the room without crying. I was tired all the time. I think my trouble was coming on me for six months before I realized it. I read of your wonderful medicine in the paper, and my husband bought me a bottle, and after the first few doses I felt better, so kept on taking it until I was well and strong. I take it at times when I feel tired and it helps me. I will always have a good word for your medicine and tell anyone what good it has done me. I recommended it to my neighbor for her girl, who is sixteen years old, and it was just what she needed. She is feeling fine now, and goes to school every day."

—Mrs. E. F. BASSETT, 216 South Hayford Avenue, Lansing, Michigan.
Do not continue to feel all run-down and half sick when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is sold by druggists everywhere.

Stress also was laid by the Democrats on the failure of the Republican congress to enact farm relief legislation, while the Coolidge administration became a target on the ground that it had fostered monopolies.

22 WOMEN RUNNING FOR CONGRESS JOBS IN COMING ELECTION

Mrs. Ella Tenney Sanford,
Wisconsin, Only Senate
Candidate of Sex

Washington—(AP)—Nineteen women seek to join the three who now hold seats in the house; those three want to come back for another term, and still another woman desires a place in the senate.

This array of women candidates for congressional places in Tuesday's election is the largest in the history of the country and is but additional evidence that women are going in more and more for political honors.

Women candidates are scattered through twelve states, including those in the East which long resisted the movement from the West for universal suffrage.

The three women seeking to succeed themselves are Mrs. Florence P. Kahn of California; Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers in Massachusetts, both elected to succeed their husbands who died in office and Mrs. Mary T. Norton, Democrat, New Jersey.

WANTS HUSBAND'S JOB
Mrs. John W. Lanley, Republican of Kentucky, aspires to the seat from which her husband resigned after his conviction and sentence to the federal penitentiary at Atlanta for violation of the prohibition law.

Covell Hall, former chairman of the Democratic National committee, and a minority leader in the house, finds himself opposed by a woman—Mrs. Anna Thompson, Republican—in the Fourth Tennessee district.

New York has five women candidates, all running on the Socialist ticket, and Illinois has three, all Progressives.

Kentucky, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Massachusetts have two women candidates each, while one each is listed in Iowa, Washington, Idaho, California and Tennessee.

Wisconsin comes forth with the one woman seeking a senate place. Mrs. Ella Tenney Sanford, who is running on the prohibition ticket.

"UNCLE BOB"

RADIO ENTERTAINER TELLS TALES HERE

Uncle Bob F-jaqed by Theatre to Tell of His Experiences

Walter Wilson or "Uncle Bob," well-known bed-time story teller and child entertainer of the radio will appear at Fischer's Appleton theatre at 4:30 Monday afternoon and at 7:15 and 9:15 in the evening. The afternoon performance has been arranged especially for the children and will bring in person the funny old man who has interested and entertained as well as admonished them at 6 o'clock each evening over KYW, the Westinghouse station, Chicago.

His act will include the playing and singing of some of his own songs, and telling humorous stories of his experience in radio. "Uncle Bob" was the originator of the idea of instilling into the child's mind through constant admonition the necessity of staying on the sidewalk and not running into the street. One day while walking near his home in Chicago, Mr. Wilson saw a four year old child struck down and killed by an automobile. The scene remained in his mind and suddenly while working on his program, the thought occurred to him that perhaps he could do something in his work on the air to help the children and prevent accidents.

"Uncle Bob" will appear on the program with Marie Prevost and Harrison Ford in the picture, "Almost a Lady" and with the mind reader, Marajah and Mystic.

ATWATER KENT RADIO

Receiving Sets for five, six or seven tubes. ONE Dial or three Dials. Mahogany or crystalline finished cabinets. Price range from $16 to $223. Illustration at left is the extra-general Model 32 Receiver, price $140; Speaker Model H, $21.

"We don't have to hunt at all—we just select!"

"I NEVER saw a radio set a little girl could operate as well as I can until we got our Atwater Kent ONE Dial set," said a man we know.

"As it has only one dial, my four-year-old daughter can work it perfectly. Sometimes when we're in the dining room I ask her to go into the living room, where the set is, and bring in the station we want. Within ten seconds she does it."

"We can actually sit there by fire-light—or in the dark—and change programs at will."

"You see, with this set you don't have to do any hunting for stations. You just select what you want. If a station is within range, you just can't help getting it—in fact, all stations within range come marching in, one after the other."

"Talk about Radio made easy! There couldn't be anything easier to operate than this Atwater Kent set, with the ONE Dial."

Buying it is easy, too. Ask any Atwater Kent dealer.

THE RECALL IS VICIOUS

Some labor organizations in Wisconsin have passed resolutions approving the proposed recall amendment to the Wisconsin constitution. We feel sure that the action was ill-advised and that upon a more thorough study of the subject labor will ultimately take the lead in fighting the very thing it has approved. Labor as a whole is too intelligent to be deluded by socialistic theories and fantasies into discarding the well proven, clean and orderly system which we now have.

Is there anything the matter with Wisconsin courts? Is there any reason why an attempt should be made to intimidate Wisconsin judges? Are we not well satisfied with our judicial system? Our own history plainly proves that the people are contented with it and rightly so.

Most of our judges in Outagamie County have died in office, which is only another way of saying that their conduct of the judicial positions entrusted to them has met with the approval of the people. We have had few examples of good citizenship, of plain, democratic and honest men in places of public trust such as the three judicial positions in the county. The same history is general throughout the state.

But the bad part about the recall in relation to the judiciary is that, instead of having judicial officers entirely independent of the control or influence of powerful people, and particularly wealthy people, it will make them weigh the possibility of advantage or disadvantage to themselves in their decisions and rulings. Not only that but they would be subjected to the constant annoyance of repeated elections every time they incurred the displeasure of a powerful person, corporation or group which would be clever enough to disguise its own action through the use of dummies. The result would be that the best qualified men would not take office and the standard of ability, where ability is most needed, would be materially lowered.

Furthermore, the recall by undermining the independence of the judiciary could not fail to draw it into politics. Throughout its history Wisconsin has kept its judiciary out of politics by surrounding it with those safeguards which eliminate partisanship and other unhealthy influences. To subject it to the recall would serve to draw it into politics during the following elections. No candidate for judge could fail to take account of elements and factions which have a special interest to promote or a grievance to satisfy. It would to a large degree draw the judiciary down from its present high level to the level of sheriffs, legislators and local offices that are steeped in politics.

At a meeting of the bar association of Outagamie county a resolution in opposition to the recall amendment was unanimously adopted. The same thing has occurred in many other counties. The bar of Wisconsin as a unit is against the amendment. The bar is made up of lawyers who represent every kind and shade of litigant, rich, poor and whatnot, as well as every defendant charged with transgression of law. Their opposition to the amendment is based on the absolute conviction that from the standpoint of law and justice the judiciary as it exists is healthy and sound, serves the public interest in the best possible way, and that its integrity, fairness, independence and uprightness would be gravely threatened by the proposed amendment.

In these days of changes and amendments it is wiser to cling to at least some of the great principles underlying the government of our fathers, and surely, most of all, to the cleanest and best part of our governmental system, the judiciary.

Most matters of governmental policy or principle that arise and are submitted to the people present questions upon which minds may reasonably and honestly differ, but the recall as applied to judicial officers is so bad, so entirely bad, that the question does not present two sides.

COOLIDGE AND ADVERTISING

President Coolidge in addressing the American association of Advertising Agencies at Washington accorded advertising perhaps the greatest recognition it has ever received at the hands of a distinguished public official. The president gives advertising a leading role in the creation of modern American prosperity. He described it as "the life of trade" and as the foundation "for much of the success of the American industrial system."

Mr. Coolidge drew attention to the fact that mass production has done two great things for American industry, one of which is to establish its world pre-eminence, and the other is a constant reduction of costs. But mass production is only possible where there is mass demand, and this, according to the president, has been created "almost entirely through the development of advertising." This is, of course, true, and it is also true that this mass demand could have been attained in no other way. As Mr. Coolidge points out, in the years gone by goods were expected to sell themselves. Today a demand must be made for everything that is produced, and advertising is the exclusive agency. There is no other.

There is not a large corporation or a large producer of any kind in the United States that could have reached its present proportions or have made its financial success without engaging heavily in advertising. The same thing applies to the local producer and merchant. All of those which lead and expand and grow are strong advertisers. In fact, consistent, intelligent, aggressive advertising is the key to the success of every mercantile and industrial business. Ultimately it will apply to the products of agriculture as well, just as it is being applied today to the products of horticulture.

Advertising, therefore, as the president points out, is not an economic waste, for it "ministers to the true development of trade." Its indirect force in the business world is to reduce production costs, create mass demand, which is the main support of our domestic market, and to preserve and increase the high American wage scale. Advertising has become a great and a fine art. Its possibilities are unlimited. It requires skill in its preparation and judgment in its use, but there is nothing of merit which proper advertising cannot sell in large and ever-increasing volume. It is today axiomatic, as the president infers, that every commodity is marketed and every business developed in proportion as it is soundly and wisely advertised. The true index of successful merchandising is intelligent advertising.

THE POWER OF YOUTH

'Tis a long established truth,
Age is in the power of youth.
Youth may scoff that Age is prim,
Filled with many a worn-out whim.
Youth may fancy Age to be
Cruel in its tyranny.
But the fact is every hour,
We are in our children's power.
They can take our joy away,
None can hurt us more than they.
Through the years which we must live,
Endless sorrow they can give.
They can cause our hearts to bleed,
By one careless, thoughtless deed.
Every dream we cherish still Lies within their power to kill.
'Tis our children who possess
All we hold of happiness.
Theirs the folly! Ours the cost!
If they fail us, we are lost.

CHRONIC CARBON MONOXIDE GAS POISONING

Even nitwits nowadays are aware of the dangers of carbon monoxide poisoning, say from the exhaust of a gasoline engine running in a closed garage. Only the veriest hootch hounds and homebrew guzzlers now venture to go to sleep in a room where a gas stove is burning without proper flue connection. Still a fatal toll is taken by carbon monoxide among the illiterate population. It is a case of the survival of the fittest.

Chronic carbon monoxide poisoning is not so well recognized, because it isn't fatal and it is usually mistaken for something else. Fractious physicians are nevertheless alert - nowadays for the masked signs of chronic carbon monoxide poisoning in patients who have been much exposed to atmosphere polluted by gas engine exhaust vapors. Among the signs which at least arouse suspicion, if the patient is of such a class, are headache, pallor, lowered nutrition, digestive disturbances and odd symptoms which are politely designated as "neurathenic."

If you happen to have an assortment of such symptoms about your person, never mind about the neurathenic part—we are all neurathenic as the dickens now and again—don't start yelling that you've been gassed. First, have you been exposed to gas polluted air long hours every day, like a traffic cop in an antediluvian town where automatic signals are new fashioned contraptions? Well and good—or too bad, then the next thing is to go to the doctor and let him make a blood test.

Characteristic thing about the pallor or apparent anemia of chronic carbon monoxide poisoning is that when the doctor comes to a count of red corpuscles he finds a high count, a good five million or more, right up to the normal number, whereas in ordinary anemia of such degree as the pallor would suggest the red corpuscles are generally reduced to three million or less per cubic millimeter of blood.

There ought to be some blood test even more specific than this, but if there is I have not heard about it, and up to the present time this peculiar feature of distinct pallor yet a high red cell count is looked upon as practically conclusive of carbon monoxide poisoning.

The importance of recognizing chronic carbon monoxide poisoning lies in the fact that once the victim knows he is being poisoned in that way he can change his occupation or at least attempt to correct the condition responsible for his impaired health. Sometimes that is readily accomplished by simple improvement in ventilation, or by the aid of electric fans.

No specific antidote has been found. The victim of chronic carbon monoxide poisoning must win back to health by putting in as much as possible of his time outdoors in the sunlight and giving the gas a wide berth. In acute carbon monoxide poisoning asphyxiation, as Professor Henderson, has shown, a fairly effective antidote is the administration by inhalation of a 5 per cent mixture of carbon dioxide with oxygen. Perhaps an occasional few whiffs of such a mixture would do good in chronic carbon monoxide poisoning.

Changing Climate
We have three small children and we contemplate moving from our home near Nashville to Des Moines to live. We thought of making the move in December, but have hesitated because of fear that the children may getroup or pneumonia. The winters are much colder in Des Moines than in Nashville. Would it be unsafe for us to go? (J. G. J.)

Answer.—So far as the difference in climate may be concerned it is perfectly safe to make the move. If the children are not infected by other persons they will not getroup or pneumonia. How to protect the children against such infection is the same problem in Nashville or Des Moines.

MOTHERS' PENSIONS

By Frederic J. Haskin
Washington, D. C. — The United States Children's Bureau has just prepared a report which contains figures and facts to prove that giving aid to mothers with dependent children is an economy. The study made clearly indicates that home care is both cheaper and better than institutional care.

It has also been said that "home-made" children, cared for by their own mothers, have the best chance of becoming healthy, normal citizens. The chief problem now is not to "sell" the idea of public aid to mothers. That has long since been done and forty-two states now have mothers' pension laws providing for aid to children in their own homes. The difficulty now is to obtain large enough appropriations to raise the standards of administration so that the laws already in existence may really mean something to the children they were intended to benefit.

So far as legislation was concerned, the principle of home care for dependent children met with a more ready response than any other child welfare measure ever proposed. The trouble is that in many cases after such legislation was passed public interest lessened and in all but a few localities appropriations were insufficient to make the new laws really effective.

While there are 130,000 children receiving public aid in the home, there are between 350,000 and 400,000 who are in need of it. The extent to which available appropriations meet the need varies in the different states. This is indicated by the ratio of children aided to general population. New York, Nevada, California, Massachusetts, Wisconsin, Montana, Minnesota, New Jersey, Delaware, Maine, and North Dakota headed the list, reporting aid given to more than 200 children per 100,000 of the total population. The ratio for the remaining states gradually dwindled until the vanishing point is almost reached, the figures for those bringing up the rear being 8.5, 4.4, and 1.4 per 100,000.

In one state the mothers' aid legislation has become inoperative, except for two counties, because of defects. WORKING DON'T UNIFORMITY. In several other states practically no use is made of the law, while in many excellent work is done in some localities and nothing in others.

As early as 1906 the juvenile courts of some counties of California granted county aid to children in their own homes and in 1911 the state began to reimburse these counties for such aid given.

In several other states some effort was made in different localities to lend aid of a similar nature. It was not until 1911, however, that the first definite legal provision for aid to mothers of dependent children was passed. This was done almost simultaneously in Missouri and in Illinois. The Missouri law, however, applied at first only to Kansas City and was promoted by a maternal organization, while the Illinois act was the first statewide mothers' aid law.

The scope of eligibility to receive aid has widened since the first laws, which tended to restrict it to widows. Some states grant aid to any mother with dependent children, while others permit aid to be granted to relatives who are caring for needy children. Six states render aid to expectant mothers, and Colorado even goes so far as to give aid to fathers with dependent children.

While for the most part appropriations do not provide for what is termed an adequate amount in each case, what is being done is believed to be a step in the right direction and there is much evidence that many children have benefited. Surveys have shown that many have been saved from placement in institutions and others have been relieved of undue hardships at home.

Several examples of what this home aid has meant are cited. There was the case of a woman whose husband died leaving her a small amount of insurance and five children to rear. This woman had worked hard all her life and was physically worn out. Despite this fact she took work home from a local factory, but was able to earn only about 90 cents a week by putting in all the time left after caring for her family. This did little to relieve the financial strain and at the end of a year her money was nearly gone.

SELF-RESPECT RESERVED
An allowance of $45 was granted her and she was permitted to retain a small reserve fund to be used for emergencies and unusual expenses. The children were intelligent and ambitious and the oldest boy who was attending high school, was able to earn enough for his own support after school hours. His sister, fifteen, also attended high school but was not strong enough to work in addition to studying. The self-respect of the family was carefully guarded and it was not believed that any humiliation was felt since such an allowance is not so apt to be viewed as charity as might be the case of assistance offered by a private organization. Also in this particular case the source of the family's income was known to only a few.

There was the case of a woman with six children. She was attempting to run a confectionery store, but had no business training, and things went badly. There were days when the children went hungry. Finally a neighbor, suspecting the truth, said to her, "Look me in the eye and tell me whether you have had anything to eat today." She was obliged to confess she had not, and public aid was arranged for her family.

A young woman, left a widow with three children, attempted to carry on the farm work after her husband's death. The strain finally broke her health and she feared that she would have to give up the farm. A mother's allowance, however, was arranged for and suitable arrangements were made for lightening the work. This woman was overjoyed to be able to be in a position to maintain her home so that the children might live where they could have plenty of fresh air.

There are many families who might resent the inference of charity, and also sporadic aid while tiding over an emergency is of no great benefit to a mother who is endeavoring to bring up children to be self-respecting citizens. It is believed by workers and officials that a grant of aid given promptly, with a reasonable assurance of continuance, and accompanied by kindly and intelligent service, is the best possible way to meet such a situation as that in which a mother of young children may find herself when deprived of her husband's support.

The Children's Bureau hopes by the new report to stimulate interest in aid to mothers with dependent children so that even if no change is made in the existing legislation, a better administration of it may result.

THE QUESTION BOX

Q. How fast can a person think? G. L.

A. The speed of nerve impulses is 404 feet per second. If an idea is complicated enough to take 100 nerve passages from one side of the brain to the other, the thought could be completed in less than one-tenth of a second.

Q. What is the origin and correct spelling of the term monniker? M. I.

A. Monniker is a slang term used both in England and in the United States. Its origin is unknown. There are three accepted spellings of the word: minoker, monniker, and monniker.

Q. May I make an article for my own use if I know has not been patented? C. W. H.

A. Everyone has the right to make, sell, use, an unpatented article of manufacture.

Q. What is fluid rock? G. G.

A. Lava is frequently described as molten rock, particularly when it issues from a volcano.

Q. Is the government doing anything to improve the status of the Indians? D. J.

A. During the past three years, the Department of the Interior has approved and seen enacted into law 162 bills, all intended to improve the situation of our Indian population.

Q. Who painted the Age of Innocence? E. L.

A. Sir Joshua Reynolds.

Q. Who pays the guides at Gettysburg? L. W. A.

A. The guides at the eGittsburg National Military park do not receive salaries but receive only the fees from the people whom they show through the grounds.

Q. How long was each round of the Dempsey-Tunney fight? G. L.

A. Each round was three minutes. The length of the entire fight was 30 minutes; 10 three minute rounds, and 9 one minute intermissions.

Q. Exclusive of the World War, how many people are now on the pension roll? T. A. D.

A. There are now 510,000. The largest number on the roll was in 1905, when there were 1,001,196.

Q. Are eggs that are laid in stables or near hog pens likely to absorb unpleasant odors? C. C. S.

A. Freshly laid eggs are more susceptible to odors than eggs that have been laid for some time. An egg that has absorbed odors would not necessarily be injurious to health to eat, but objectionable to the taste.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York—Typical conversation at this season of year, on almost any Broadway corner above Fortieth street:

First Man—Yes, sir, Keith's circuit offered to feature me for 40 weeks, but I held out and now the movies are bidding for me. But I told Belmont I'd give him a chance.

Second Man—Fine, glad to hear it, Joe.

First Man—By the way—could you let me have a couple of bucks 'til next Thursday?

Once upon a time when New York was young and society entertained at home, instead of at the mappy night clubs, phaetons, barouches, and the like set forth only from the noblest and most select doorteeps.

Today they are the passing fad of Broadway and when the white lights belt tires of them they disappear from all places save those few where matronly, aristocratic grand dames with white hair emerge on Sunday morn.

Within the year I have seen the color of old cabbies and their curbstone cabs disappear from one district and then another. You used to find them at the 33d street entrance of the Pennsylvania station. One morning they were gone, but a few could be seen at the foot of Fifth avenue, near the Brevoort.

I see them seldom now. They retreated up town and formed a column at the Central Park entrance and about the Plaza hotel. It seems to me their ranks are thinning there, too.

The one cab that appeared on Broadway was driven by an old darkey whose custom it had been for many years to call for Al Johnson.

Suddenly all Times Square has come to life with them, particularly in the late hours. The cabbies at the night club will have nothing else. What sport they say, to go about after a dozen cocktails in an open carriage!

The ancient Jehus have learned their stuff. They spring it on the tourists who wander by. They have a veritable ballyhoo.

"Come on, folks! Here's the different ride! See New York in a cab! Take your time and be in style! With the result that the Broadway traffic jam is increased, considerably these nights by patient horses, trying to feel their way through a strangely changed scene.

It is no longer a novelty to see them trotting along in the dawn dragging their hilarious fares.

Who knows? If this vogue for the old-fashioned continues some Broadwayites yet may learn to walk!

The pumpkin head at the window to-night should find you dressed either right — or ridiculous.

If you seek to disguise, we can't be of service, but if you want to look very much like yourself—we can.

This apparel is invited to the same party you are going to and it's going to grace its host and hostess by being on time—up to the minute!

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

THE WATCHMAN OF THE DIKES
BY ARTHUR N. PACK
President, American Nature Ass'n.

You would never suppose the great blue heron would be interested in about ways to an end. The heron is very much interested in crawfish which multiply so rapidly their tunneled have weakened dikes so much the water has crashed through.

There have been instances when the people found out too late these sentries of the dikes should be left to eat crawfish to their hearts' content because rebuilding dikes is costly to say nothing of the damage done by the water. Thus we have another example of the fine balance in nature's laws. The heron ate the crawfish and kept them in bounds so they could not multiply enough to weaken the dikes.

Thus you see the heron is good for something besides making the center piece on a tapestry. When knights were bold the heron was their game though it does not take any boldness to shoot a heron.

The forehead and top of the head of the great blue heron are white while the sides of the crown and crest are black. The neck is pale gray, and the throat is marked by white, rusty and black streaks.

Seventeen members of the Fox River valley chapter of the Reserve Officers association and nineteen Citizens Military Training Camp students attended the meeting of the association Thursday evening at Conway hotel. The boys were guests of the officers. Officers and students were present from Outagamie-co, Neenah, Menasha and New London. The meeting was the best attended of the year, it was reported.

At the request of Lieutenant William McGinnis, president of the organization, Chaplain P. O. Keicher introduced the boys. In the small group present there were four men who had been members of the Wisconsin football team at the camp. Seven had qualified for special ratings in the use of service rifles, machine guns and one had qualified as the best rifle shot among Wisconsin students. Another had qualified as the best soldier among the Wisconsin students. All the young men are high school and college students. Several were not able to be present because of attendance at distant colleges and one had enlisted in the regular army at the end of the camp period.

After a short business meeting, Lieut. McGinnis introduced the speaker of the evening, Major Clyde R. Eisenschmidt, executive officer of the 40th infantry, the unit to which most of the county men are attached. Maj. Eisenschmidt discussed the future of the organized reserve and then spoke on the Organization of the Infantry Division.

The infantry division is the smallest unit which contains in the same day, all special arms, he said. In the division, approximately 20,000 men were so designed as to cover a road space of one day's march. This makes it possible for the infantry division to arrive on the field and put all its men into battle on the same day. The infantry division is the smallest unit to have any considerable striking and penetrating power and provide for the assimilation of replacements and reserves. Major Eisenschmidt pictured the infantry division as a great football or baseball team, in which success depends on thorough cooperation and teamwork by each unit and each special arm.

Capt. Frank L. Whittacker of Green Bay, a member of the regular army, spoke on the success of the 1925 C. M. T. C and told of plans for 1927. The students took part in the general discussion as to the value of the decentralization into smaller camps as compared with the larger camps at greater distance of previous years. The students favored the larger camps, but also felt that there is a big advantage in the smaller camps nearer home, where parents might visit and where training might be to some extent more intensive.

It was decided to hold the next meeting on Nov. 18 at Armory G, at which time members of the organization would provide a rabbit dinner.

CITIZEN'S DUTY IS TO CAST VOTE, PLUMMER STATES

Former State Commander of American Legion Addresses
High School Students

Citizens have duties to their country in peace time as well as war, H. L. Plummer, former state commander of the American Legion and a member of the Oney Johnston post, said in an address on the significance of the ballot, at a general assembly meeting at Appleton high school on Thursday afternoon.

The most important duty in peace time, the speaker stressed, is to vote, and the American Legion and other organizations in the United States have become alarmed in the past few years at the refusal of citizens to exercise the privilege of the ballot. A nation wide campaign was launched by the legion this fall in an attempt to increase the number of voters.

Mr. Plummer told of his recent visit to Philadelphia during the national convention of the legion. He visited many historical places in and near that city, including Valley Forge where Washington and his men spent a winter during the Revolutionary war, the home of Benjamin Franklin and of Betsy Ross, where the first American flag was made.

These Americans fought for the government, liberty and freedom, and those citizens today who are privileged to vote and do not, are betraying the traditions built up by these patriots, the speaker maintained.

Cards were distributed to each student on The Ballot. They were urged to take them to their parents, brothers and sisters who are of legal voting age and tell them how necessary it is for each citizen to voice his beliefs through the medium of the vote. It is small wonder, he continued, that the government is run by small political cliques when the people of the country refuse to realize that the only way to remedy the situation is to vote.

The cards stated in part: "There was a time when people couldn't vote. Kings ruled for centuries, and our ancestors struggled so that people might vote and thereby rule themselves. "But, if the people don't all vote, they don't really rule themselves after all. The small number of people who do vote are the real rulers. It is just as dangerous to let small groups of voters rule you as it is to have powerful kings."

"In order to have this country really have a government of the people, by the people and for the people, all must vote on election days."

"BLACK BOTTOM" LATEST DANCE CRAZE; SUCCEEDS CHARLESTON

Here is the second installment of the "Black Bottom," latest dance craze. Five preceding steps were given in yesterday's paper.

6—Left foot is lifted eight inches from floor. Do this slowly and bear in mind the "black bottom mud" idea. Left foot is then placed down again and right foot raised in same way. Now step with raised foot. There is no movement either backward or forward. This step is merely the "old man shuffle" found in so many negro dances.

7—Now dancers are in light embrace, palm-to-palm. This is a walk of four steps forward, man starting with right foot. The Black Bottom walk is distinctive. The shoulders swing and the girl bends backward as she walks back and the man does the same thing when the walk is reversed four steps.

8—Shows how knees should be bent in the Black Bottom walk, described in the paragraph above. Don't forget the shoulder swings and the body bends.

9—This movement simulates the sinking into the mud antics of darkies. This step is done in place. To six counts the dancers slowly "sink," moving lower and lower toward the floor, feet rising and falling slightly to each count; knees bent inward, weight on inside of feet. On count of seven and eight, dancers rise again by straightening knees and bringing body erect, flat on feet.

10—This is the finale to the Black Bottom. It is very athletic and is supposed to picture the relief and happiness of the darkies released from the mud after he regains dry ground. You simply hop into position illustrated, crossing feet, first right foot in front, then right right foot behind. Repeat quickly to count of six and on seventh count heels come together again with a snap. And now you have it!

Wherein A Rich Young Landlord
Loses A Tenant And Gains A Wife

BY VIRGINIA SWAIN
WASHINGTON—In the beginning Lillian Glascoz paid rent to Harry Wardman. But now it is he who pays her rent—and her other expenses.

The love story of Washington's building wizard and his charming wife began—as his business career began—in a matter of building and renting an apartment.

Wardman was already a factor in the real estate world of Washington, owner of many houses and apartment buildings, well established building contractor and man about town, when pretty Lillian Glascoz came with her mother to Washington from her home in Asheville, N. C., and took an apartment in one of his buildings.

"I showed her the place and thought to myself what a nice tenant she would make," he says. "After that, I used to find opportunity to present the rent bill myself and then to bring it back receipted after she had sent her check."

HE LOST A TENANT.

Business and developed into social calls, and before long, Lillian had given notice to her landlord that she would not need the apartment any longer—for his home was to be hers. So Harry Wardman lost a tenant and gained a wife.

That was twenty years, more or less ago. Today, they live in a great house on the grounds of the palatial Wardman Park Hotel, in which a great many high officials of the government live—to say nothing of the picturesque foreign personalities attached to the various diplomatic corps.

The son of poor English working people in the textile mills of Yorkshire, Harry Wardman had stowed away on a transatlantic liner, mingled with the passengers, evaded customs men at both ends and dropped out of the escape into New York, catlike, on his feet.

He spent a wandering life for a few years, working as a tradesman, burning his way to Denver and back to the World's Fair at Chicago in 1893.

But shortly after that he got a job in Philadelphia with a contractor, which determined his future career. He learned his trade from the ground

Later he went to Washington and began to take small contracts in his own right, working without capital on close margins, but always with a small profit.

His business grew, he was able to assemble a crew of workmen, and in a few years was throwing up rows of houses that made Washington gasp. At length, he had to his credit the building of nearly 5,000 houses and 500 apartment buildings.

MR. AND MRS. HARRY WARDMAN

FROM SEVEN SHILLINGS

By actual census, Wardman now houses one-tenth of the half million people of Washington. He also owns four Washington hotels and the new Park Lane in London. He has built this career on a capital of seven shillings which he had in his pocket when he landed in New York.

Mrs. Wardman prefers her own home to any hotel. She is extremely interested in domestic affairs, but she likes club work and politics too.

She is now the Republican National Committeewoman from the District of Columbia.

There is one daughter, Helen, who is in school in Paris.

The Wardmans' travel much together, but they also travel alone. For neither believed in merging individualities to the point of boredom and monotony.

TEACH HONESTY TO CHILDREN

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

THE airplane thief is with us at last. One was stolen from Peake's Field at Ottawa, Ill., recently. Will the oldest inhabitant please look over his records and see if he can beat that?

I have heard of glass eyes being stolen, and wooden legs, and church pews, and cigar-store Indians, but this is the first time I have had the pleasure of hearing that someone has annexed an airplane not his own.

Seriously it comes to this. The type of person who would steal an airplane would not be hard to guess. A boy—or two boys—between ages of 13 and 22, far aside from the criminal phase, such an act is redolent of foolhardiness and adventure.

"What is sin in others is merely an experiment in ourselves," quoth the wise man. There is where you have the beginning of 99 per cent of crimes. Some crime is vicious, some is malicious, some weakness, and a vast amount of it is experimental.

Crime in youth comes almost invariably under the latter class, especially stealing. Most professional thieves, burglars, second-story men and automobile thieves are very young. They go in for it partly for sensation; half the time when they start they do not know what they are actually doing or the enormity of their crime. Afterwards when it is too late to back out, it doesn't matter, nor do they care.

Once I taught school. There was in my room a rather lovely spirited boy of twelve years. He was as normal a child as I have ever seen. One day a policeman came to school and got him. He had reached over the counter in a bank and stolen two thousand dollars!

When they sent him to reform school I knew the child did not realize what he had done. I think someone dared him to do it. But at the same time he was without fundamental sense of ownership.

Children are never too young to be taught honesty. Six months—a year is right. Three years—five years of age is too late to begin. Do not condone the theft of a cookie!

And teach him that there are other kinds of stealing besides material things. The rights of others, the time of others, the brightness of others may all be stolen. Honesty of mind is the fundamental basis of honesty of ownership. That is why stealing and lying are partners.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tynmites, of course, were sad. The luck they'd had was really bad. When Mister Squirrel ran away their little cart was wrecked. Said in a wailing tone, "It's our own fault! We might have known. We made the squirrel work too hard, so what could we expect?"

Then Carpy rose and chimed right in. "Oh, shucks, let's bear our fate and grin. There is no use in crying over spilt milk, so they say." Now that was very good advice. To smile instead of frown is nice, so all the band was very glad to look at it that way.

Just then they heard a noise right near. A thumping, thumping, very clear. At first it seemed so very loud it filled them with fright. Then Ukey looked and loudly cried, "Ah here's our chance to get a ride," 'cause he had seen, far down the road, a horse run into sight.

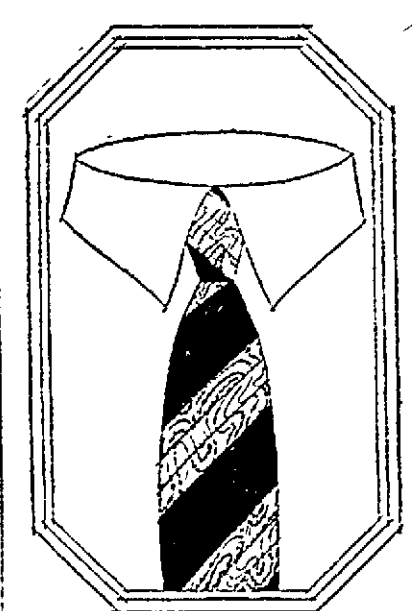

The horse's hoofs, upon the ground, had made the thumping, thumping resting against it. I knew that he could feel its fluttering. I knew that he probably could hear its insistent tumult.

Under these circumstances it seemed el almost superfluous to ask, as I did: "Do you really want me to, John?" Knowing that my treacherous heart had already answered him before I had spoken.

"It will be for such a little while, Judy," he pleaded.

"Don't say that, John. For little or long, I am yours. If it will give you any peace to have such a poor thing as I here with you, the least that I can possibly do is to give you that peace."

Again John's lips sought mine.

"Joan," he said peremptorily, "bring a minister, immediately, and on the way get a marriage license. Judy is going to be my wife."

I felt myself tremble. I did not know whether it was from terror or joy.

Dr. Phillips got rid of most of the people in the room and put me back upon my temporary bed.

Then I think I fainted, for it was some time afterward when I realized that one of the internes had returned with a minister.

I looked about somewhat wildly and seeing Mamie, whom somebody had been thoughtful enough to bring into the room, I whispered that I wanted to talk with her alone for a moment while I was being made ready for the ceremony.

One of the nurses and an interne wheeled me into an adjoining room and left me alone with my friend.

"Mamie, do you know what is going to happen?" I said. "Do you know that in a minute or two I am going to be married to John Meredith and I don't even know after

Her Own Way.
A STORY OF
A GIRL OF TODAY

HOW ABOUT JERRY?

"Oh, Judy, don't say you'll not marry John. It will only be for such a little while. Think, dear how few real joys and how little happiness my brother has ever had in his life. The greatest one has come through you, my dear. Since he saw you, he has known love. He told me this morning that you made him visit to the Beaux Arts last night a dream of heaven."

"But, Joan, that visit brought him death," I exclaimed through tears. "Don't cry, Judy. I want you to go to John looking happy. I want him to think that possibly there may be years of happiness ahead for him with you, Judy, you will marry him, won't you?"

I was grateful at the entrance of the doctors and others who had come to take me to John, making it impossible to answer.

I was sure that I could not be so cruel as not to grant this last request of a man who loved me so much—and yet—there was Jerry! I hated to make him unhappy. Some way down deep in my heart I had always thought of myself as Jerry's wife when I became the wife of any man.

John Meredith's room was in another part of the vast hospital and I had a few minutes to think as I was being trundled up in the elevator and then through another long series of halls. I wanted to ask Joan about Jerry but she was walking behind me talking to the doctor. Wildly I thought she had not mentioned Jerry. Had anything happened to him? Why had Joan been so reticent?

I wanted Jerry, as usual, when I was in trouble. I wanted to ask him what to do. I remembered with a little rueful smile that I didn't always take his advice, but I always knew his reassuring smile that what I wanted from Jerry Hathaway. I got it. It was not advice but the surety that whatever I would do, no matter how many mistakes I would make, he would stand by me. And oh, I wanted somebody to stand by me now.

It had been an eventful few months that I had lived through since I had come to Chicago to make my own way—and only at this moment had I realized that I had not had my own way—at least not the selfish way I had wanted for myself when I had left my father's home.

John Meredith lay stretched out on the narrow white hospital bed. His eyes were closed and it seemed to me that upon his pale face and lips the smile that presages the peace that cometh all understanding had already begun to settle.

When his eyes opened, however, and found mine, he became fully alive. His expression changed when he caught a glimpse of the calico-cade which was bringing me to him. With that welcoming smile upon his face one would hardly think he was even ill.

"Darling Judy," he said in a kind of high, strained voice, "God did let you come to me."

"Bring her over near me," he commanded the attendant. I was wheeled over to the edge of the bed. "Lift me up and place me as near her as possible."

Dr. Phillips, with wonderful understanding, picked me up in his arms and placed me in a sitting position with my back to the head of John's bed. About me were banked pillows until even my injured leg was made comparatively comfortable. With superhuman effort John placed his head in my lap. Only his eyes seemed alive. I bent down and kissed his lips.

"Have they told you, Judy? Are you going to make me happy for the little while that I shall live. Are you going to marry me?" Again he had forgotten everyone about us.

I could not resist the pleading of his eyes. I could not resist the clamor of my own heart, which was beating in the wild manner it always did when I had even come near the man whose beautiful head was now

Jean Nicolet chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution, of Green Bay and DePere will be hostesses to the next state convention of the organization in October, 1927. It was voted at the thirtieth annual state conference which was held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at Waukegan. The next convention will be held either at Green Bay or DePere. Mrs. W. Ray Challoner, regent and Mrs. George Ashman, vice regent represented the Appleton chapter at the convention. Mrs. Alice Russell recently was appointed state page but was unable to attend the meeting. Mrs. Challoner attended a meeting of chapter regents Wednesday afternoon.

A splendid musical program and talks by prominent speakers featured the convention. Registration at 1:30 Wednesday afternoon for visiting delegates and the meeting of the state board opened the conference. An informal supper was served at the Congregational church at 6 o'clock and in the evening a musical program was given.

The formal opening of the convention took place Thursday. Greetings were given by Mrs. Thomas W. Spence, vice president, general from Wisconsin and Mrs. William H. Crosby, past vice president from Wisconsin. Dr. W. A. Ganfield, president of Carroll college was the principal speaker Thursday afternoon.

The principal speaker Friday morning was Dr. J. D. Brownell, president of Northland college. Mrs. Spence of Milwaukee, vice president, general from Wisconsin gave a talk on Continental hall and what can be done to furnish the Wisconsin room. At the opening of the Friday morning session, there were 150 delegates present. Another feature of the convention was an automobile ride about the city and vicinity of Waukegan conducted by the Chamber of Commerce of that city.

Renew Vows In Church Where They Were Wed

MR. AND MRS. ANDREW CHRISTL

Fifty years ago today Miss Mary Gehring and Andrew Christl were married at St. Joseph church in this city. At a solemn high mass at 9 o'clock Saturday morning in the same church Mr. and Mrs. Christl renewed their marriage vows. The Rev. Pacific Rath had charge of the service. A reception was to be held from 3 to 5 o'clock at the home of the couple at 314 S. Locust-st.

A dinner was served at 12:30 at Hotel Northern as a part of the golden wedding celebration for children and grandchildren of the couple. Covers were laid for about 30. About 50 relatives and friends will be served at a dinner at the home of the couple at 314 S. Locust-st., Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Christl were born in Austria. Mrs. Christl, who is 68 years old came to this country from Austria at the age of one year, and Mr. Christl, now 73, came to Appleton at the age of 15 years and has been a resident of this city since that time. He learned the trade of carpenter and cabinet making and later conducted the Valley House hotel on Lake-st. for about three years. Mr.

Christl was manager of the Fair Grounds hotel for about 30 years. Mr. and Mrs. Christl have eight children. They are Mrs. L. H. Eiser, and Peter Christl of Appleton; Mrs. M. F. Walter of West Bend; Mrs. Ward Spencer and George and Clarence Christl of Milwaukee; Albert of Oshkosh and Joseph of Menasha. There are also 16 grandchildren and one great-grandchild, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Eiser, 1412 N. Oneida-st., which was born Friday morning at St. Elizabeth hospital.

FIRE DESTROYS
FARM BUILDINGSBucket Brigade Saves House
on Charles Weidenhaupt
Farm

Kaukauna—A large barn and several out-buildings on the Charles Weidenhaupt farm in the town of Buchanan about three miles south of Kaukauna were burned to the ground by a fire which started early Friday evening in the hay loft of the big barn. The cause of the fire is not known. Because of the distance to the fire it was impossible to send any fire apparatus from the city. Bucket brigades were organized in an effort to save the house and several of the smaller buildings. The blaze could be seen for many miles around particularly through the valley between Kaukauna and Appleton.

SCHNEIDER HELPS SOLDIER'S MOTHER TO SECURE PENSION

Mrs. Vera Lucille Loche of Antigo Receives $1,575 from Government

Through the efforts of Congressman George J. Schneider, a claim of $1,575 has been paid by the Federal government to Mrs. Vera Lucille Loche of Antigo as compensation for the death of her son, Ervin a World War veteran. The young man died several years after he was discharged from service. Mrs. Loche made application for compensation, but owing to legal technicalities in the old veteran's compensation law, payment had been withheld for more than two years. Mrs. Loche made application after application to have the matter adjusted, but technicians balked every attempt, according to congressman Schneider.

Finally in desperation she appealed to Congressman Schneider who immediately took the matter up with proper authorities at Washington, D. C. Early this week, less than two months after Mrs. Schneider had started negotiations, Mrs. Loche received the check for $1,575.

KRUGMEIER HOST TO OUTAGAMIE-CO-LAWYERS

Attorney A. H. Krugmeier invited members of the Outagamie-co Bar Association to be his guests at a fish dinner at the Northern hotel at 6 o'clock Saturday night. Although the gathering is strictly of a social nature it is believed that considerable discussion of the proposed amendment which would allow for recall of county, judiciary and legislative officers, will take place. The association, national, state and county, is on record against what is called one of the most dangerous pieces of legislation ever submitted to the voters.

MAKE LOVE TO OLD MAID? JIM- INY SAYS FORD, THAT'S TOUGH!

The hardest woman in the world to make love to is an old maid. Harrison Ford, playing the male lead in "Almost a Lady," Marie Prevost's new Metro-Goldwyn picture, which will be shown at the Fisher's Appleton theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, discovered this while several scenes of the picture were being taken. Harrison was besieged by an aggressive spinster of ancient vintage, who just wouldn't let him alone.

"Make love to her," shouted Director E. Mason Hopper. "Make it quick and you'll get rid of her all the sooner."

The order was easier than the execution. "Jimmy! that's tough! Wait until I get up my courage," replied Ford. The machinery of production was stopped until Ford could compose himself.

When his courage returned Ford glanced endearingly at the old maid looked "goofy," rolled his eyes for a moment—and it was over.

Several scenes later the actor was making love to Marie Prevost, who plays the feminine lead.

"This is much easier," commented Ford, "and," he added, "much more pleasant."

The story of "Almost a Lady" concerns a modiste's model who becomes involved in the meshes of a pair of newly-rich social climbers and has many interesting adventures in consequence. Harrison Ford and George K. Arthur are featured. Trizie Friganza and Barney Gilmore play important roles.

Also Marjiah The Mystic and usual short features.

SENSATIONAL BOOK IS PERFECT ENTERTAINMENT
One of the greatest football games ever staged for a motion picture comes as the climax to "The Plastic Age," B. P. Schulberg's rollicking version of Percy Marks' sensational novel of the younger set, coming to the New Bijou Monday and Tuesday.

It is a story of youth in all of its fast moving phases, but it holds just as much interest for the mothers and cads as it does for the rollicking youngsters who are either in college or are on the way there. Also it holds much for those who have no tangible idea of what college is all about.

It is not exactly a glorification of American college life, as it has a definite moral to depict, which necessitates the showing a bit of the life that youth is apt to follow when it breaks away from the family hearth for the first time. But it certainly is a glorification of the "spirit" of American college life, than which there is none finer.

The entire picture is crammed with dramatic action and sparkling comedy, presenting an all star cast which includes Clara Bow, Donald Keith, Mary Alden, Henry B. Walthall, Gilbert Roland, David Butler, Joan Standing, J. Gordon Edwards, Jr., and Felix Valle.

"LA BOHEME" ONE OF YEAR'S FINEST
"La Boheme," Lillian Gish's first American-made picture in some years is the attraction commencing Monday at the Elite theatre.

The much-heralded play, in which Miss Gish is seen in the tragic role of Mimi, famous wherever opera is loved, is one of the outstanding productions of the year from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, and Miss Gish's interpretation of the role has created a furor in studio circles.

King Vidor, who directed "The Big Parade," directed the new picture, which was staged on a lavish scale. John Gilbert plays the leading male role as Rodolphe, the poet, with Renee Adoree as the sprightly Musetta. Others in the cast are Roy D'Arcy, Edward Everett Horton, Gino Corrado, Karl Dane, George Hassell, Eugene Pouyet, Frank Currier, David Mir, Rosita Marstini and others of note.

Special Meeting of Machinist Union Wednesday, Nov. 3 at 8 P. M. in Labor Hall, 128 E. College Ave. W. Schoenberg, I. A. of M. Representative will address meeting. Union and Non-union machinists invited.

STAR ORANGE HALFBACK MAY PLAY AGAINST KAUKAUNA

Witzke, Regular Back Injured In Bay Battle, Given Chance To Play

Orange Hopes Rise as Doctors Say Injured Boy May Possibly Be Ready

Appleton high school's hopes for a victory over its ancient rival Kaukauna in the final game of the season at Kaukauna, tomorrow, Nov. 1, went up a large notch, Saturday when it was announced that Witzke, stellar Orange halfback, might be able to get into the Electric city game. The fighting half wrecked his knee against West Green Bay a week ago and had to be carried from the field. The injury was diagnosed as water on the knee and doctors said that the youth would be unable to play the rest of the season.

However, Witzke, whose loss is a big blow to Orange hopes, took good care of his injury and with doctors working on it almost daily it has improved faster than was thought possible last week. Now the doctors say that the injury has knitted well and unless something happens before then, the Orange halfback may go out for practice for the first time next Friday or the following Monday. If this is possible he probably will be in at his old half against the Smithmen.

strengthening the rear wall considerably. However, chances still remain that he may not be able to play. Witzke was a regular last year, excelling on plunging and defensive work with his hard tackling. It was an extra-hard tackle attempt which injured him against the Baymen last week. His loss was felt as Coach Field had Popp, a junior high player last year, and others, Roomer and Strutz working at his position this week. Popp probably started at Green Bay this afternoon.

The return of Witzke will be needed for the Orange will be weakened against Kaukauna's strong crew by the absence of Cookson, star end. The wingman will have reached the age limit by Nov. 11.

FOUR SQUADS OUT AT K-C PRACTICE

First Scrimmage of the Year at Kimberly Brings Out Many Former Stars

Kimberly—With four complete teams out for regular practice the K. C. Athletics are set for one of the best years in basketball yet experienced by the Kimberly mill. Scrimmage was held for the first time this week and practically all of the men showed up to advantage. At the forward position Pete Kell took good to repeat the pace that he set last year when he was one of the best shots in this part of the state. However, he has plenty of competition for the position with Boettcher of last year's squad, Courchane, LaRue, Pope, Haugen, and Chelout out for the jobs. Some of the best prospects for the center job seem to be Williams of last year's team, DeChane and Theisen. At guard Milt Scheurle is back at Kimberly, with Ossie Cooke, Swede Olson, Joe Frassetto, Jack Clark, Carl Van Rydzin and Struelke trying out for the guard positions. Kimberly has joined the State Basketball League and with there will be a need for a couple of competition as fast as it is in this loop, fast going teams at the clubhouse. Plymouth has Elliott, the Shiebes and Steffes, well known in this territory, as is Doc Delmore and his two Rivers aggregation. Besides these teams Kohler of Kohler, with Lorne Loebe and the helmy Sheboygan American Legion of the Interstate League of last year; Port Washington, Manitowoc and Fond du Lac making the league, an eight-club affair. Practices are held Mondays and Thursdays at 4:45 and Tuesday nights at 7:00 o'clock.

San Francisco—Eddie Roberts, Tacoma knocked out "Irish Fagin, New Ark, N. J. (1).

Sacramento, Calif.—Ollie Bartlett, St. Paul, beat Frankie Murray, Philadelphia (10).

Tampa, Fla.—Armando Shekeis, outpinned Frankie Omer, Tulsa, Okla. (10).

Oberlander In Perfect Play In Cornell Battle

BY "SWEDE" OBERLANDER

It is rather difficult for me to pick out any particular play and label it great, for I never was a flashy open field runner. But when our team was asked to select what, in their judgment, was the greatest play of the year, the major tyof them named one which was executed in our Cornell game last fall.

We had been combining our running attack and our forward-passing in such a way as to demoralize the Cornell defense. Although the game ended with the score 62 to 13 in our favor, it by no means indicated the comparative strength of the two teams.

The first quarter had ended with the score 14 to 13, Dartmouth having the one-point lead. Cornell had scored touchdowns in both instances by smothering over half the length of the field. We could not withstand the power of their offense. Whenever they gained possession of the ball they were invincible. Yet somehow, after each score was made, they elected to kick, and whenever we received it usually resulted in a score for our side.

In this manner the game was seeing-sawing back and forth. Suddenly, opening more spectacularly our passing game, time and time again we caught their line with their heads in the air and their feet off the ground. Our running line plays were working perfectly.

About the middle of the second period, the ball in the middle of the field, what might be described as a perfect play occurred. It was one of these sudden line thrusts. Every detail of it was executed exactly as if plotted on paper.

Our backfield formation lined up as usual, three men in a line parallel to the scrimmage line with the quarter under the center.

The latter side up the situation; the secondary defense, out of position to guard against our aerial attack; the defensive left tackle, wide to stop our off-tackle play.

MacPhail called for the inside-tackle thrust. As right half, it was my ball. I received it from him on the fly. It was a quick opening play with no interference leading the carrier. The end and tackle were wholly responsible for making it successful.

Our end cleanly blocked out the opposing tackle. As I drove through the hole I cut sharply to the sideline to avoid the defensive fullback and then reversed diagonally back to side-step the defensive left half.

Thus free, I had only to contend with the safety man. Our left tackle had gone through and successfully taken out the defensive right half. By another sidestep and stiff arm the safety man was left behind. With no opposition I coasted across the last line, completing a play with every assignment perfectly executed.

ANOTHER WALSH

The name Walsh continues to play a stellar role in Notre Dame athletics. Back in 1924, Adam Walsh was captain and center of the Notre Dame team, considered the outstanding eleven in college circles. He is now doing his stuff as a coach on the coast.

In the recent game with Northwestern, which Notre Dame had a hard time winning 6-0, it was Charley Walsh, a brother of Adam, who caught a forward pass for a 50-yard gain, making possible the winning touchdown. He plays end.

BERLENBACH RANKS TUNNEY FOURTH IN HEAVYWEIGHT LIST

Paul Says Dempsey Still Is Best With Stribling, Delaney Next in Line

New York — Paul Berlenbach, a mighty good heavyweight himself, still regards Jack Dempsey as the greatest fighter in the game.

What is more, he places Young Stribling and Jack Delaney ahead of the present titleholder, Gene Tunney. Here is how the former light heavyweight champion rates the leading heavies: Dempsey, Stribling, Delaney, Tunney, Sharkey, Loughran, Risko.

In making his selections Berlenbach refused to include himself in the list. He deserves to be placed about number five in the ratings.

Berlenbach placed the defeat of Dempsey to lack of proper training and to the fact that he didn't engage in three or four no-decision bouts before putting his title at stake.

HARRY GREB WAS COLORFUL BOY

In the passing of Harry Greb the fight game lost its most colorful figure. Despite a decidedly unorthodox style, he was a great fighter. Unquestionably he was the best middleweight since the death of Stanley Ketchel.

Gene Gives Greb Credit For Climb To World Title

BY JOE WILLIAMS

New York — Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion of the world, had just returned to his home from Pittsburgh, where he was a pallbearer at the funeral of Harry Greb, a two-time champion.

Tunney was a great admirer of Greb, and the tragic result of the operation which ended the eccentric German's earthly career deeply touched Dempsey's conqueror.

"Everybody said Greb was a clown fighter," commented Tunney. "They called him a windmill and a freak, a tireless puncher who even his fight mainly because he had speed and could keep slapping and cuffing away."

"To me Greb was a great fighter. Indeed, I think he was the greatest fighter, in spots, I ever saw. He could box as well as anybody when he tried. He was a hard hitter when he set out to hit. He had a fine defense, and there was nothing wrong with his footwork."

"Of course Greb had certain marked eccentricities in the ring. He was not what the game calls an orthodox fighter. But there was much more to him than clownish gestures and spectacular acrobatics. Behind all this was a real fighting background and a rare courage."

Tunney gives credit to Greb for his own gradual development into a heavyweight champion. Tunney fought Greb five times. Once Greb beat him. That was, incidentally, the only time in his life he was whipped. It was from Greb that Tunney won the light heavyweight championship, and a rare courage."

"I learned a lot in my fights with Greb," admitted the champion. "I learned, among other things, the value of sharp-shooting, for it was necessary to be a sharp-shooter to catch Greb. He was always on the go, side-stepping, retreating, advancing, always moving."

"Fighting Greb, I gained confidence in myself. I could see myself improve from fight to fight. He first time I met him he whipped me. The next time we fought I whipped him. When we watched again I whipped him even worse."

"The last time we fought was at St. Paul. I could have knocked him out that night. When the fight ended Greb said to me, 'I've fought you for the last time, Gene. You are too tough. Go and get Dempsey.' Greb was the first fighter of consequence who admitted I was ready for Dempsey."

"I think everyone who saw the fight at Philadelphia will admit that I made Dempsey back up more than once. Well, I fought Greb five times and I never made him back up a single time. I knocked him back with punches frequently, but not once did he ever back away."

ILLINOIS-PENN BATTLE FEATURE OF WESTERN CARD

Gopher Favored Over Badger in Most Important Game on Big Ten Schedule

Chicago — The midwestern's own football difference were overshadowed Saturday by conflicts of national significance. Invasion of Pennsylvania and Georgia Tech led the list of intersectionals at home, while Michigan and Missouri were in the van of campaign on eastern fields. Six games involved teams in major conference battling but of these only one or two were of any great importance in solving the 1926 Big Ten and Missouri valley riddles.

Nationals interest centered chiefly in the fortunes of Michigan at Navy and Notre Dame against the Georgians. The Middle are the lone intersectional foe of the fall for the Wolverines, apparently headed for their second straight Big Ten title, whereas Tech was one milestone in Rickne's national gridiron campaign. Already he has downed two Big Ten teams, and Army and Southern California are the two big opponents remaining on the schedule.

Notre Dame was favored to repulse the invasion at South Bend but Illinois was regarded as having its stiffest test of the year against Pennsylvania, coming west to repeat the triumph registered over Chicago at Philadelphia. The Illinois, however, were entirely recovered from their defeat by Michigan and where a week ago the easterners were given the edge, the game was called a toss up by the time some 60,000 odd fans stormed the Illinois stadium.

In the Western Conference proper, the major game was the Minnesota-Wisconsin clash at Madison, with Minnesota rated a slight favorite to emerge as a likely conference champion. The prospect of wonderful football from the Buckeyes drew around 50,000 to Stags field in spite of the fact that Chicago was given virtually no chance against Ohio. Northwestern was conceded the second easy triumph of the year over Indiana. Carroll college and Indiana Normal were the respective non-conference opponents of Iowa and Purdue.

BLUE HOMECOMING TO HONOR WALTER CAMP

Lawrence college will share the profits of its homecoming football game to honor one of the greatest grid heros of this country, Walter Camp of Yale, known as "the father of football." When Carroll plays here on Nov. 13 in what should be the best blue home game, the day will be designated as Walter Camp day. Walter Camp days are being held by every big college and university of the country this fall and a portion of the gate receipts of the games will go toward a memorial monument for Walter at New Haven, Conn.

DODGE BROTHERS NEW SPORT ROADSTER

Utility, smartness of line and finish and careful attention to detail are all apparent in the new Rumble Seat Sport Roadster announced by Dodge Brothers. There is a striking contrast between the tan colored top, the brilliant pheasant green lacquer and the lustrous black of the fenders. A distinctive touch is added by the highly polished nickel trim. The back and cushion of the rumble seat, like the front upholstery, are in gray Spanish, hand buffed, genuine leather.

National Doctors Specialist
Dr. Baird, Associate (Licentiate of Wisconsin) Brings the Knowledge of Our Organization and Our Experience in the Successful Treatment of

COMPLICATED CHRONIC CONDITIONS

Expert Service Free of Charge—The National Doctors, experienced Specialists, treat without SURGICAL OPERATIONS or HYPODERMIC INJECTIONS diseases of the Blood, Skin and the Internal Organs, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lung Troubles, Old Ulcers, Tape-worm, Eczema, Asthma, Chronic Constipation, Epilepsy, High Blood Pressure, Bedwetting and other morbid affections of the body.

Years of experience and the complete records of great numbers of cases successfully treated prove that the methods of the National Doctors are very dependable. Many people keep on suffering from ailments that might be greatly improved because they cannot afford to go to high-priced Specialists away from home, and few communities have sufficient numbers of such cases to support a specialist.

The National Doctors have solved this problem by having their trained Specialists travel from town to town to meet the sick. They instruct patients, recommend a treatment, and teach ailing men and women how to take care of themselves at home.

To those having ailments of long standing, whatever the trouble may be, and notwithstanding the poor results of former treatments, come and talk it over.

Examination and advice FREE. Ladies are requested to come escorted. (Laboratories Milwaukee, Wisconsin)

TRY THIS UNIQUE WAY TO BE MARRIED--IT'S THE LATEST

Dreadnaughts of the United States fleet aligned for battle at sea as viewed from the triple gun turret of the squadron flagship. Navy Day directs public interest to these guardians of the nation's peace.

DES MOINES, IOWA

Marriage by long-distance telephone, with the toll charges merrily rising while the "Do you's" and "I do's" were exchanged, was the method chosen by Harvey Webster, 19, and Miss Jean Pettit, 18, of Des Moines, Ia. They decided the minister, Rev. Paul Clark, relative of the bride, might as well stay right in his study in Oklahoma City.

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

CHAPTER 24
George Pruitt, who, in a suit of "Lone" Lane's overalls had been busy all afternoon stripping layers of dirty old paper from the living room and dining room walls of the Lane house, firmly announced his intention of staying for supper, helping cook it, and spending the evening, as a member of the paper-hanging squad.

"I'm going to make a washtub full of spaghetti, real honest-to-God Italian style," he said, and began to delve in the pantry with knowing hands. "Two packages of spaghetti—goosh, is that all you've got?—onions, cayenne pepper, mushrooms—no mushrooms? where are your mushrooms, young woman?" he demanded stoutly of Faith, who stood by laughing helplessly.

"You've wandered into the wrong kitchen," she giggled. Faith giggled. She could hardly believe her own ears. "This isn't the Astorville pantry, my man. We're poor, but honest workin' peep-pul, Mr. Pruitt! There ain't no such things as mushrooms!"

"Is that right?" George retorted with mock truculence. "Her Joy! Get a hump on! Take this five dollar bill and skin out to the grocery store and bring back a pound of dried mushrooms. Make it snappy, old-timer!"

Joy's eyes bulged at sight of the bill. "Do mushrooms cost five dollars a pound?" Her voice was weighted with awe.

"Good Lord, I don't know! Don't waste my time on petty details. I'm a busy man, I am. Scoot! Two cans of tomato pulp—well, I'm glad to see that even poor but dishonest workin' peep-pul indulge in such sinful luxuries as tomato pulp. Cheese? That'd be in the ice box, I suppose."

"I've got a half pound of American cheese," Faith said, following him to the ice box. "Will that do?"

"Ought to be that Italian kind, grated, but I guess it'll do," George conceded magnificently. "Here, you grate it. Where's your biggest steaming kettle?"

Half an hour later, waves of savory fragrance were pouring through the house from the bubbling pot on the stove. Cherry, coming in from work, stopped at the living room door to sniff ecstatically.

"Yoo, hoo, Faith! What a lot of work you've done! And that heavenly smell! Italian spaghetti? Look what the kitten dragged in!"

Faith, flushed, laughing, feeling more like a giggly school girl than she had ever felt in her life, ran from the kitchen to meet her sister.

"George is cooking the supper," she announced breathlessly. "He's been helping me all afternoon—"

"Don't skunk! I'm in the door, Bob Hathaway!" Cherry, her eyes, cheeks and hair a glowing riot of color, seized his hand and drew him into view. "He was at the office, on business with his uncle, Mr. Cluny, you know, and I kidnapped him! He struggled desperately, but the strength of my good right arm held out and here he is. Told him he'd have to help us napers, sentenced to hard labor for resisting an officer!"

Faith's heart leaped painfully at sight of his embarrassed blue eyes, fixed appealingly upon her. Why did Cherry have to drag him into the situation just when the idea of marrying George—dear, gay, campy, campy-able!—was becoming almost bearable? But how thin Bob's tanned cheeks were, how hurt and wistful his blue eyes! The flush deepened on her cheeks as she gave him her hand.

"I'm afraid Cherry is an incorrigible gold-digger," she said rather breathlessly. "But we really don't need any more help, if you had a previous engagement. Dad and Junior and George and Cherry and I certainly ought to be able to paper two rooms."

"Well, for weeping noisily!" Cherry ejaculated in pretended anger. "You can't send my little playmate home like that! You wouldn't turn him out into the cool world after he smelled that divine spaghetti, would you? Now you two go right on holding hands," she said a little maliciously, "while I scoot into my room and put on something cunning I bought today. And don't you dare show Bob the wallpaper until I come out."

George Pruitt was insisting that Bob Hathaway make notes on the scientific preparation of spaghetti a la Italian, and Faith was opening jars of branded peaches—a delicacy that had achieved almost the dignity of a family heirloom, since Mrs. Lane had put them up before prohibition, when the most precious ingredient was still obtainable—when Cherry appeared at the kitchen door.

"Don't faint, Faith!" her musical laughter rang out at the sight of Faith's thunderstruck face. "Don't I look cute? I leave it to George and Bob!"

She was wearing a suit of green and white checked gingham rompers, cut square and low at the neck, and sleeveless, her tiny waist encircled by a broad sash of the gingham, tied in a big butterfly bow at the back. Beneath the short, bloused, elastic-bound legs of the rompers, her dimpled knees shone pink and bare. She revolved slowly before them, like a mannequin.

"My overalls," she laughed excitedly. "What the well-dressed flapper will wear when she papers the old homestead. Strange—but I hear no applause!" she cupped one hand behind a small ear and pretended to listen.

"Three cheers for the new member of the paper-hangers' union!" George Pruitt waved a big iron spoon. "All together now—"

Faith, suddenly feeling as if she had been doused with ice water, looked first at Bob, whose face was flushed with laughter and his eyes kindled anew with the flame that had burned so brightly for a brief two weeks, then to George Pruitt, who had been trying to get her to say 'yes' to him all afternoon. His face was darkly flushed, too, his small black eyes snapping with excitement. Faith knew then that he would not bother her again that evening for an answer—and she hardly knew whether she was glad or sorry.

Mr. Lane, after an ineffectual attempt to make Cherry change from rompers into a more modest garment, succumbed at last to the hilarity which dominated the supper table.

George's spaghetti was extravagantly praised and ravenously eaten, to his huge delight. Even Mrs. Lane made no sighing excuse for her appetite when she reached out her plate for the third helping.

"My land, Cherry, you'll be the death of me yet!" Mrs. Lane's enormous body shook like a mountain of jelly. "What are you skunking about over there, Faith? I declare I never saw two girls as different as these two, Mr. Pruitt—well, George, then, I don't like to get familiar on short acquaintance."

"I'm not skunking, Mother," Faith lifted her eyes from her plate for a fluttering moment. "I'm just quietly enjoying myself. Cherry has enough pep for both of us."

"Give me how to roll my spaghetti up on a fork, George," Cherry leaned so close to George that her hair brushed his cheek.

"Here! I'll guide your hand like they do kids when they're teaching them to write," George offered, eagerly taking her small hand in his. "Now hold your big spoon in the other hand. See? You just twist the fork around and around in the bowl of the spoon, and the spaghetti winds right up. Now pop it into your mouth!" To Faith, watching, it seemed that he withdrew his own hand very reluctantly.

"O-o-oh! Such a big bite!" Cherry giggled, then opened her delicately rouged mouth wide, so that her gleaming teeth showed dazzling. Just before the forkful of spaghetti reached her lips, she changed its course impulsively, jamming it against George's laughing mouth.

"And just think," Faith heard her confide to him in a suddenly subdued tender undertone, "I used to think you didn't like me! But I always liked you, George. I always knew you were an absolute darling!"

"Same to you, and many happy returns," George Pruitt made a mock bow and seized her hand, lying suggestively near his on the table edge.

"I move that the paper hangers' union adjourn to the living room and take up its labors," Bob Hathaway, who had missed none of the by-play, interrupted abruptly. "Faith and I will wash the dishes, but every last glutton of you has to take his own dishes to the kitchen sink. Ready? Go."

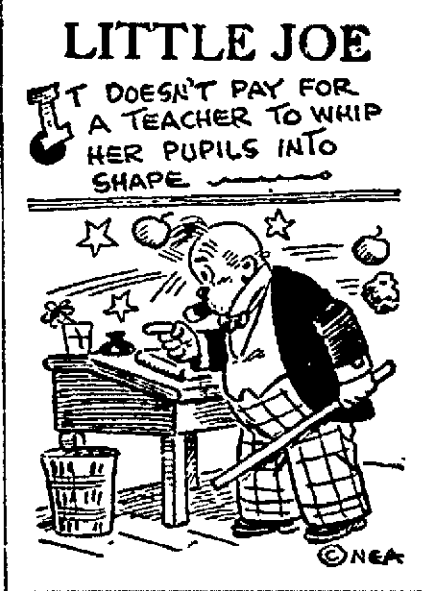

Even Mrs. Lane joined the laughing procession to the kitchen. "I declare," she said to her husband, who walked beside her, "I don't know when I've had so much fun! Ain't it a sight to see Cherry carryin' on so innocent and gay? And them two boys just hangin' on her words—"

"It's Faith that young Pruitt is spakin'," Mr. Lane whispered guardedly. "I've a good mind to speak to Cherry—"

"Faith, my foot!" Mrs. Lane's whisper was hissing loud. "You need two pair o' specs! He's clean daffy over Cherry, and so's Bob Hathaway. I always said she could take her pick o' the town."

Mr. Lane, uneasily aware of the fact that Cherry was already engaged to old Mr. Cluny, that this very wallpapering orgy had been instigated for the sole purpose of making the house presentable to the rich old man's eyes, said nothing further, but his mild, near-sighted eyes were suddenly very sad and wistful.

"Everybody come and see the wall paper first," Cherry set her dishes clattering in the sink. "Then Faith and Bob can have the kitchen all to themselves. But I warn you—" she shook a pink finger in Bob Hathaway's face—"no fair turning dish-washing into a petting party. Faith looks so womanly and domestic in a kitchen apron that no man can resist her. Believe me, for practical purposes of securing proposals, I'd rather have a fetching kitchen apron and a pan of foaming suds any time than a new dance frock and a full moon."

"You might try getting a kitchen apron then," Faith retorted. "And using it occasionally—for practice."

"K. O." Cherry pretended to be doubled up with a blow on her solar plexus, but her eyes shot a flash of anger at Faith.

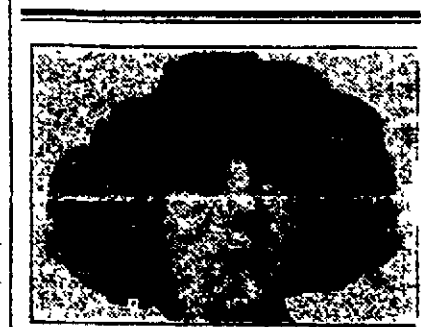

"Bring on your wallpaper!" George cried, wheeling Cherry about and marching her, his hands on her shoulders, back into the dining room. "This is for the living room." She snatched a roll of paper from the stack against the sideboard. "Did you ever see anything so heavenly?"

Against a background of cool, dove-like French gray, a woodland scene in the palest of gray-greens and smoky blues—great, tossing boughs, burly tree trunks, feathery ferns, clumps of laurel, a stream rippling between mossy rocks—repeated itself endlessly. The colors were so subdued, the outlines so softly hazy, that it was like looking at an enchanted landscape through a pearly mist.

"And this," Cherry beamed and sparkled under the chorus of approval, "is for the dining room. Green being my favorite color, I couldn't resist it," and she spun another roll across the dining table.

"Goodness goodness, Miss Agnes!" Junior breathed, almost reverently. "Where's the catch in this trick? You can't buy wallpaper like this on a twenty-five a week, and have anything left over for lipstick!"

To Faith it was quite obvious that both George Pruitt and Bob Hathaway had been struck by the same thought. They were so frankly amazed at the richness and beauty of the thick, velvety paper that her cheeks burned with shame. Cherry had been a fool to accept so handsome a present from the old man who fatuously believed that the eighteen-year-old flapper would marry him.

"Isn't this exactly like sage-green velvet, Muggy?" Cherry cuddled up against her mother, who had been casting furtive uneasy glances at her husband. "See the silver stripes!" Like moonbeams on a new-sown lawn! Let's get busy, folks! Junior you bring in the wooden horses and those long planks from the woodshed. Dad will measure the walls and cut it the right length. Won't you, darling? Faith, you and Bob shake a leg in the kitchen! And I don't mean Charleston either! George is going to be my partner, and if he gets fresh I'll make him eat that goosey pears! Scared of me?" she caught George's hand and ran, skipping like an excited child, into the dismantled living room. The remaining installments of this story will be found on the woman's page of The Post-Crescent starting next Monday.

IN 1837, when the free teaching of music was introduced into the Boston Public Schools, it was the Chickering that was selected as the piano for this undertaking.

Just as the Chickering was chosen in that bygone time as the finest piano for an important work, so has it been chosen all through the years by the most cultivated people and by the finest artists. And today such marvelous pianists as Dohnányi, Lhevinne, Schnitzer and many others will use only the Chickering.

Yet, when the Chickering is made in a size small enough to suit your living-room, you will find the same wonderful qualities that are heard in the mighty instrument whose voice has charmed countless thousands from the concert stage.

Historic Kaiserhof Of Berlin May Soon Pass

Berlin.—(AP)—The German government has decided to purchase the historic Kaiserhof hotel on Wilhelmstrasse and to convert it into an office building.

Berlin society thereby is greatly disturbed and from every quarter protests are descending upon the ministry of finance. Parliament is being bombarded with plans to veto the arrangement. Many Berliners feel that one of the chief connecting links between the old and the new Germany would thus be destroyed.

SCENE OF NOBLE FUNCTIONS

The Kaiserhof during the fifty years of its existence has been the scene of some of the most brilliant functions under the imperial regime. Here the weddings of the smart set were held. Whenever a large festival took place at court, to which potentates came from foreign countries, some of the guests were lodged in the Kaiserhof, as the accommodations at the royal palaces were limited. For many years Prince von Bulow, former chancellor, was its star guest.

The greatest aggregation of blue-bloods which the Kaiserhof housed stopped there during the marriage of Princess Victoria Louise, only daughter of William II, to Ernest August, duke of Brunswick, in 1913. The emperor's brother, Prince Henry, the grand duke of Hessen, and many other royal personages then lived at the Kaiserhof, and among those who paid their formal visits were Czar Nicholas of Russia and King George and Queen Mary of England.

OIL COMPANY OFFICERS
HOLD REGULAR MEETING

New London.—The regular monthly meeting of the officers and directors of 1901, the dinner arranged in honor of Count Walderssee and the other officers who served against the Boxers in China, in 1900, and the benefit bazaar held under the patronage of Empress Augusta Victoria in 1900.

The occasions were not devoid of humor. Thus, as the empress arrived with her two boys, the ex-crown prince and Prince Oscar, to open the bazaar, young Oscar espied the brilliant red uniforms with golden buttons worn by the hotel pages. Stamping his foot, he declared emphatically to his imperial mother, "I want to have such a red coat, too, mother." To avoid a scene, the empress replied, "Very well, you shall have one."

The Kaiserhof, the first really modern and luxurious hotel to be erected in Berlin, so impressed the aged first German emperor, William I, that he remarked to his brother Prince Karl, on being shown through the rooms, "That's better than anything we can afford."

The New London Cooperative Oil Co. was held Thursday evening. Monthly reports were read and the regular business transacted. The board of directors: Mulvaney, Emil Magadan, Leo Black, C. G. Holz and Rudolph Floetz, the officers being H. C. Kerklow, president; H. Sitchman, vice president, and William Marasch, secretary. Reports showed the company to be in splendid financial condition. It was reported.

NEW LONDON AWARDED
CONVENTION OF CORPS

Special to Post-Crescent

New London.—A large delegation from the local organization attended the district convention of the Women's Relief corps at Hortonville Thursday.

The following district officers were elected for the coming year: Catherine Rickaby, New London, president; Elsie Mulvaney, Marion, vice president; Elizabeth Foster, Antigo, first vice president; Etta Kuester, Clintonville, treasurer; Amelia Farnum, Hortonville, chaplain; Celia Lyon, New London, secretary.

The next district convention will be held at New London the fall of 1927.

BALLOON TIRES REQUIRE SPECIAL KIND OF SNUBBER

Appleton Company Appointed Distributor for Northern Territory

The Milhaupt Spring and Auto company, who have been local distributors for Gabriel snubbers for the past 15 years have been appointed factory distributors for northern Wisconsin and upper Michigan. Their territory will cover 21 counties in Wisconsin and the upper peninsula of Michigan.

Due to the fact that car manufacturers in the past few years have changed their types of tires and brakes, it has been necessary to make several changes in the construction of the Gabriel snubbers.

Larger snubbers are required on cars with four wheel brakes because when this type of brake is used, heavier and stiffer springs are required to withstand the strain. These springs develop a greater upthrust and more violent action that requires larger snubbers to absorb the shock.

Free play in necessary with balloon tires. Because the slow action resiliency and softness sets up a sort of nudging effect on the springs, which, in turn, provides an extra shock absorbing device is used that does not have free play or action at the normal position of car body, regardless of load, will build down the car springs below their normal position and rigidity is comparatively smooth roads. This rigidity is then transferred to the next most flexible unit, which is the seat cushions. Only the free play in Gabriel snubbers will overcome this most objectionable feature of low pressure tires.

Increased brake action is required in balloon type snubbers. Because of the greater movement of car body, due to the abnormal deflection of the springs, the slow action of low air pressure times itself with the car springs and works in unison with them to such an extent that greater resistance is required in the snubber to control the extra movement and prevent it from being transmitted to the car body.

Balloon type snubbers require more frequent adjustment because the two friction units, which is the fabric belt and the brass friction pad, operate as entirely separate units instead of being connected at the inner end as in standard type snubbers. This is one of the patented features of the new snubber.

By operating these units double friction is obtained. In other words, there is friction on both sides of the brass strip, and with the result that the resistance is greatly increased. This, together with the heavier compression spring used in balloon type snubbers, cause the pebbled sides of the fabric band to smooth down and seat much quicker and more firmly than in the standard type snubber. Consequently, adjustment is required sooner in order to maintain the required resistance. After the coil is worked in and properly seated, adjustment will not be required any oftener than in standard snubbers.

Balloon tires cause pitching and rolling because the slow movement of low air pressure times itself with the car springs and causes them to work in unison. This sets up a slow acting upward and downward movement that has sufficient time to raise and lower the weight of the car body in a wave-like motion that is similar to, and therefore designated as galloping.

HIGH TYPE FERTILIZER TAKEN FROM USED GAS

Atlantic City, (AP)—A new process for the recovery of an efficient sulphur compound from manufactured gas which is said to give to the agricultural and fertilizer, was announced Friday at the convention of the American Gas Association.

W. S. Yard, vice president of the Pacific Gas and Electric company, San Francisco, said three thousand tons of the new compound have been produced in the gas plants at Oakland, San Francisco and San Jose. He predicted, with other engineers, that the new process might revolutionize the by-product end of the gas business and eventually enable the gas industry to become a large producer of sulphur agricultural uses.

For years, Mr. Yard declared, the agriculturist has used sulphur for an insecticide but has had difficulty in finding a form that would give satisfactory results for eliminating the red spider and controlling mildew.

HOLD MAN RESPONSIBLE FOR EMPLOYERS CONDUCT

Fochoo, (AP)—An ancient principle in China which is that each family shall bear responsibility for the acts of any of its members, has been applied in Fochoo in a modified form to German residents.

Otto Heinsohn was jailed for the delinquencies of his employer, William Peng, charged with illegal traffic in arms. Peng left the port suddenly, and although his young countryman had been only recently employed, and there appeared to be no evidence connecting him with the affair, Heinsohn was arrested. The Germans having lost their extrajudicial rights there is no appeal.

European Steel Trust Encourages World Peace

Babson Park, Mass.—In view of the importance of the new European steel trust, Roger W. Babson was today asked his opinions as to its possible effect on the steel industry of this country, as well as on the Western European Nation. In an exclusive interview he gives us his view of the combine as follows:

"The formation of a European steel combine is important not only because of the proof it gives of improved relations between the western European nations, but also because of its possible effect on the iron and steel industry in this country. On Oct. 1, 1928, the steel producers of France, Germany, Belgium and Luxembourg signed an agreement to form a steel combine with an annual output in the neighborhood of 27,500,000 tons. Germany has been allotted 43.18 of the total, France 29.9, Belgium 11.53, Luxembourg 8.33 and Sarre Valley 6.7. In 1925 the countries in the combine produced 30.1 per cent of the world production of steel, the United States 51.1 per cent and the United Kingdom 8.8 per cent.

"The purpose of the combine is said to be to encourage competition among its members. However, I believe there is an additional and more basic reason. When Lorraine was reunited with France the pre-war German steel making layout in the Ruhr and in Lorraine was badly disrupted. The division was political and broke down the coal and coke and Westphalia necessary to France's Lorraine steel mills and the ore of Lorraine is equally essential to the German steel plants in the Ruhr. Hence, some such agreement as the present was necessary to reunite these essential elements. This is probably the basic purpose of the combine.

"That this agreement to compete on a friendly basis is a fine thing for Europe cannot be doubted. Friendly industrial cooperation constitutes a long step toward friendly political relations. The agreement is to continue for five years by which time it is felt industrial and political conditions in Europe will have become much more stable. Nevertheless, even then some form of cooperation will still be necessary to keep Westphalia coke and Lorraine ore together.

EFFECT ON PRICES
"The immediate effect on steel prices will be a stabilizing tendency in Europe. World prices will, of course, also be affected by English and American competition. Each country is to deposit $1 in a common fund for each ton of steel manufactured within its allotted percentage. For each ton produced over and above its percentage the producing country must pay $4. Two dollars per ton will be refunded to its company's selling price in any one year to produce its allotted percentage of a minimum total of 26,000,000 tons. Hence this arrangement will tend to maintain a common price. The cost of carrying it on will, presumably be added to the cost of steel and thus raise prices in these countries.

"Just what effect the combine's activity will have on prices in our country and in foreign markets cannot be foreseen. The individual members of the combine have heretofore made efforts to extend their sales along our Atlantic seaboard. This activity may be intensified and lower prices might conceivably result. However, the combine's prices will tend to rise above the competitive prices previously maintained by its members. Moreover, distress selling of European steel with attendant price cutting will probably be eliminated. In addition there is an anti-dumping law in effect here to prevent the sale of steel at a price cheaper in this country than they do at home.

EFFECT ON LABOR
The effect on labor in western Europe should be beneficial in that production will be better stabilized and unemployment minimized. Scattered strikes will be less probable because of more continuous employment. With the elimination of destructive price cutting wages will be less subject to cuts and might possibly be increased.

The general level of wages, however, will probably continue much lower than in England and the United States. Common labor at Pittsburgh draws from 44 cents to 50 cents an hour. German steel workers draw only 15 cents to 17 cents an hour, and because of depreciated currency, French and Belgian labor works for even less. English labor makes from 25 cents to 30 cents an hour. There is thus considerable room for competition between the combine and the American steel industry. However, for a number of reasons, such as better working conditions, the widespread use of labor-saving devices and mass production, American labor has always been enough more productive to hold its own and there seems no immediate threat to labor in this country. Nevertheless, in the long run greater production per man may be necessary to forestall wage cuts.

EFFECT ON TRADE
"Enough has already been said to show that the combine, England and the United States are the three leading competitors in the world markets, especially in South America and the Orient. The kind of iron and steel marketed, however, will have a bearing on how trade will vary. Exports of the United States companies are largely finished and semi-finished steel products while the Combine's chief competitive goods have been iron and steel products of lower grade. Our steel makers are probably in a position to maintain competition but conditions in the future may not be quite so satisfactory.

The combine will use its resources to intensify competition along new lines. "On the whole, therefore, one can reasonably conclude that the formation of this combine and the results that it seeks to achieve are favorable to world peace and commercial relations. Certainly the effect in Continental Europe can only be beneficial and both England and the United States are in a better position with Europe on a normal basis, than they have been heretofore with Europe a tangle of political and economic troubles. Furthermore, combine or no combine, competition from abroad was to be expected. Business in this country is proceeding at a rate of 14 per cent above normal as shown by the Babsonchart. There is nothing in sight to indicate an immediate radical change from present levels."

CONTINUE BUYING STEEL UNDER CHECK

Sequel in Way of Reduced Consumption Is Believed Developing

Cleveland, O., IRON TRADE REVIEW says—Buying of finished steel continues under check and as this continues policy of restraint swings into its third week, a sequel is developing in the way of reduced consumption. The situation for the industry as a whole may be gauged from the fact current bookings of the Steel corporation equal 80 per cent of capacity, whereas its operating rate been approximating 35 per cent. This shrinkage is attributed largely to overproduction of cotton in the South, normal curtailment of automobile production at Detroit, halting buying of freight cars at Chicago and unseasonable weather in eastern and northern portions of the country. No threat of a major recession has appeared.

Hesitant buying and contracting mill operations usually have a modifying effect upon the price structure. Although prices have been subjected to pressure, shading is not widespread. It is becoming increasingly evident that a portion of the caution being exhibited by consumers is in reality resistance to the advances imposed in the third quarter. The present may be appraised as a transitional period for prices, accentuated by some seasonal and some unlooked for factors. Producers are finding that intensified short buying is making for unbalanced mill schedules and higher costs.

In the matter of costs, the strongly advancing tendency in coke promises to play a major role. Iron prices already have been influenced and, if coke prices maintain their upward pace, it is inevitable that finished steel will be. Some coke even operators are diverting their labor to the production of coal and are loath to entertain inquiries for coke. Two important producers have followed the 50 cent advance in Mahoning Valley pig iron last week and $18.50 for No. 2 foundry, and malleable is on a firm basis. Eastern Pennsylvania prices have likewise strengthened.

OLD FURNITURE MADE LIKE NEW AT UPHOLSTER SHOP

Antiquated Pieces Made Modern by Careful Workmen

An investment in good upholstery is bound to bring big returns in pride and comfort says Paul L. Sell of the Sell Upholstering and Auto Trimming company, 214 N. Morrison-st. The motto of this firm is Done By Sell Done Right. Old furniture can be made like new, by a few days work of the upholsterers at the Sell company.

The Sell company specializes in high class upholstery, meaning that not only the appearance of the furniture is considered, but the construction of the furniture must be right before an attempt is made to put on coverings. The result of this great care is solid comfort and increased wear that means years of service.

This company also rebuilds furniture so that the style is right up to date. Many rocking chairs are converted into straight chairs because the latter do not slide about on the rugs and mar the wall boards or varnish. Mr. Sell and his assistants are all experienced upholsterers, having spent many years in doing work of this kind and they guarantee their work.

Included in the large sample line kept in stock at the workshop are many popular fabrics. Some of these are mohairs, sunfast linen velours, Italian friezes and tapestries in plain, figured and medallion designs. These samples may be examined at any time by the customers.

One of the features of the work is making old furniture look like new. A parlor or sitting room set may be taken to the Sell shop, where it is thoroughly cleaned, rebuilt, recovered and when it returns it is as good as new furniture and ready for years of hard wear.

In addition to upholstering the company covers auto tops, cushions and curtains. This is the time of the year to repair the side curtains of the car to prepare for the coming cold weather. Any job, large or small is given immediate and efficient attention. The Sell company also specializes in cleaning and recovering mattresses. They also pack furniture for shipping.

MILLS NOTE GAIN IN ORDERS FOR SOFTWOODS

In its market review this week the American Lumberman, Chicago, says: Orders for softwood booked by the principal mills during the week ended Oct. 15 showed a marked gain over the total for the preceding week. Some tapering off in the movement is expected with the approach of cold weather, as retail distributors like to reduce their stocks to as low a point as possible before inventory taking, but it is felt that much business is yet to be placed. Improved weather, in some sections has stimulated farm demand, but had road conditions in most agricultural regions prevent the farmers from obtaining their needs.

In the South, it is the beginning to be realized that despite the low cotton prices, the largeness of the crop will put a good deal of money into circulation, while industrial expansion and diversification of farming in recent years mean that cotton is no longer so important as a source of income. Volume of city demand appears to be well maintained, there being considerable building activity in sections where it was delayed in the last month or so by rains.

The 318 reporting softwood mills that have a standard for normal production actually manufactured two per cent more during the week, and their bookings equaled their cut. The southern pine mills received orders for only one-third per cent less than their output. These mills find business from the South and Southwest less active, but are booking an increased number of orders from the middle West. The West Coast fir mills took orders for ninety-seven per cent of their cut, business showing a decided recovery from its temporary slump. Red trade with the middle West is the most active division of the market. Export demand is well maintained. California trade has been gaining and has reached a fair total. Atlantic coast buyers appear to be waiting for lower freight rates on water shipments, for the cargo movement is slower, despite the fact that air stocks in the East are going into consumption readily.

Hardwood purchasing has continued quite active. The furniture industry is taking a large volume, there is a good movement to the automotive factories and a fair cut from flooring and millwork plants. Export trade has been brisk, as overseas buyers are offered the advantage of old ocean rates until the end of the year. Total orders of both northern and southern hardwood mills exceeded their production by seventeen per cent during the week.

WIFE LENDING ROWS KEEP KING OCCUPIED

San Francisco, (AP)—Disputes arising over the strange social custom of wife-lending take much of the time of the king of Washington Island.

Washington island coral atoll in the midst of the Pacific ocean near Fanning island, is inhabited by a hundred Gilbertese blacks, imported by a British company from the Gilbert islands to work coconut plantations.

There are only two white men on the island. One is Harry G. Glenn the "king," and manager. The other is his assistant, the "prime minister." Glenn passed through here enroute to England for a vacation after a three year's reign as king.

Wife lending is the native way of combatting matrimonial ennui, says Glenn. When a husband and wife tire of each other, the wife lends her spouse to a friend for a time, her consent being necessary, however. Often the friend is a young bachelor who has boarded with the family.

WON'T TEAR DOWN ALL MALT CO. BUILDINGS

Only one of the three remaining buildings of the former Wisconsin Malt and Grain company, on N. Superior-st. will be torn down before winter, according to J. L. Rissman, manager of the Rissman Wrecking company of Chicago, who is in charge of the work. Two of the buildings and the 150 foot smoke stack will be allowed to stand until spring.

terfly contrivance with a trap, or catch of rubber bands. When it strikes, the kite catches breaks, the wings automatically fold, and the camera is carried back by its own weight to be reloaded.

A "balloon camera" also is being developed for some battle scenes. A gas bag twenty feet in circumference will have a carrying power of eighty pounds. It will hold a 60-pound camera suspended in a cradle and operated by two men, being held by handles and then released on signal to rise to a height of 100 feet, shooting down on the action for a scant fifty feet of film, grinding automatically.

BETTER AND BRIGHTER WAITERS FOR GAY PARIS.

Paris, (AP)—The funereal of the conventional dressed waiter has proven too sombre for diners who want to savor the traditional of Paris, and some of the larger restaurants are experimenting with new uniforms.

In one hotel dining room uniforms of blue, considerable white ties are being tried out. Several restaurants have the tuxedo type coat with blue for a modification of evening with the white tie.
